STORROW PLACED IN THE FIGHT

Papers Taken Out To-day Believed to Be for the Man Who Is Backed by Chamber of Commerce and Committee of 750 for Mayor.

Mayoralty nomination papers which are believed to be for James J. Storrow were taken out to-day by Joseph L. Downey, a lawyer, employed by the United States Trust Company at No. 28 Court street.

"The papers are not for myself, but for a man who is a bonafide candidate and who will run." Mr. Downey said when interviewed by reporters. Politicians connect the Storrow candidacy with the Downey papers by a process of induction, as follows:

Downey is employed by the United States Trust Company.

Max Ratschesgy is the big man behind the United States Trust Company.

Ratschesky is close to Storrow and to the Storrow candidacy.

Enter Judge Dewey.

Nomination papers whichf are believed to be for Judge Henry S. Dewey were taken out to-day by John C. Hadlock of the Beacon Chambers. Hadlock was prominent on Beacon Hill last year as an agitator for home rule. After the legislative session was ended, he became affiliated with the Dewey boom for Governor.

Ward 6 men, who are alleged to be friendly to the Fitzgerald candidacy, told City Hall habitues this afternoon that they signed mayoralty papers for Congressman John A. Kelliher. The Congressman says they haven't.

James C. White, secretary to Mayor Hibbard and manger of the Hibbard boom for re-election, created excitement in City Hall to-day by inviting two solicitors of signatures for Fitzgerald nomination papers to "get out of City Hall and stay out."

McEttrick Denies the Charge.

Michael J. McEttrick of Ward 17, former Congressman and former State Senator, said to-day: "No one is authorized to take

SLAIN GIRL'S GARMENTS IN COURT

Former Employers Testify to the Good Character of Annie Mullins—Sang as She Went to Fatal Walk.

The crimson stained clothing of Annie Mullins, with the velvet collar of her jacket slashed with the keen-bladed weapon that cut her throat, were shown in the East Cmbridge Court room to-day where James Mantir and Peter C. Delorey are on trial for her murder.

The clothing was brought into court by Chief Urquhart of the Arlington police. Each garment was taken from the box. The collar which had been separated from the jacket was handed to the jurors. They examined it closely. The jacket itself and the shoes worn by the girl on the night she met her tragic fate were also handled by the jurors.

Mantir gave the garments a quick glance and settled back stolidly in his chair. Delorey, restless, twisted and turned, following every movement of the lawyers, the jurors and the judges.

Mrs. Frances von Jagemann, by whom Annie Mullins was employed, told how she sang cheerful songs before she went out for the walk that led to her death. The girl's aunt, Mrs. Mary Glascoe, testified that Annie appeared to have but one sweetheart, Peter Downey. It was agreed not to mention him by name during the rest of the trial. Downey was interviewed many times by the police in connection with the case. His whereabouts now are not known.

Mrs. Von Jagemann, who employed Miss Mullins, told how cheerful the girl was on the fatal evening. She chatted with the girl in the kitchen after supper and saw her for the last time about 7 o'clock looking out of the kitchen door. Thinking that the girl was not going out that evening, Mrs. Von Jagemann gave her a book to read. She said she saw a man with a light overcoat in front of her home, who might have walked from her yard.

Mrs. Von Jagemann was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Hardy.

Q.—Do you remember what she did on the day of March 27, 1908? A.—She did general housework.

Q.—How did she appear that day? A.—Very cheerful.

Geyer, Mrs. Annie Baldwin, Imogene Costillo and Ione A. Walker.

MME. STEINHEIL LEADS STAMPEDE OF COURT

PARIS, Nov. 5.—A general outcry led by Mme. Steinheil in the Court of Assizes this afternoon lent a new sensation to the trial of the "tragic widow." The uproar came when the presiding magistrate, M. De Valles, made a bitter attack on the defence.

The case had reached the point in the story regarding Mme. Steinheil's placing a pearl in the pocket of the valet, Couillard, to implicate him as the murderer of her husband, M. Steinheil, and her stepmother, Mme. Japy.

"I am going to ask the witness an important question," said M. De Valles, impressively leaning toward the jury. "I now request the jury to watch this woman closely and to see how clever an actress she is.

"When I put this important question to the witness she will faint."

The judge's voice had not become silent before there was a cry from every one present in the court room. Above the general protest rose the shrill note of Mme. Steinheil's angry protest.

A Thunder of Protests.

Maitre Aubin, her counsel, was on his feet in an instant crying: "That is an unfair attempt to influence the jury," and from all about the room came a thunder of protests.

"It is not right" cried the woman on the stand. "You cannot fight me like that. You are unfair," she shrieked.

The turbulence increased, even the known enemies of the prisoner joining the censure of the Judge. All attempts to restore order failed, and finally a recess was [illegible] and the room cleared.

When the trial was resumed, Mme. Steinheil declared that the murderer stole the $1,510 on the night of the crime.

"Expert evidence proves that on the night of the crime there was no more than $800 in the house," declared Judge de Valles, leaning forward and staring at the witness with a mocking air.

"Those figures are wrong," Mme. Steinheil cried, and then she broke forth in a torrent of protestations of her innocence. She asserted that the family was not in debt at the time of M. Steinheil's murder.

Mme. Steinheil's friendship with Borderel, for love of whom it has been charged she killed her husband, was taken up and the accused woman broke down while telling of her love.

Borderel Her Only Friend.

When the accused admitted that after the murder of her husband and her stepmother she gave way to her infatuation for M. Borderel, the Judge asked: "So that is the reason you revived your affair with Borderel in October, 1908?"

"No, no," shrieked the witness. "He befriended me because he knew I was suspected and abandoned by my friends. He did all for the sake of my poor daughter. Oh, my child!"

While the prosecution was closely following the story of the placing of the pearl ring in the valet's pocket, Mme. Steinheil declared that she hid the jewel there to find out if the valet were guilty.

"French justice acts the same way," she said, drawing herself up haughtily and glancing at the judge with a look of triumph.

Mr. Devalles began an energetic denial, but Mme. Steinheil continued: "Pardon me, I beg, but one of the judges is an intimate friend of mine and he told me——"

She got no farther. A violent interruption from the bench prevented her from speaking the name of the magistrate she was about to mention.

With a sob that seemed almost to rend her, Mme. Steinheil sank to her knees sobbing inconsolably. The trial was interrupted for several minutes.

Returning to the question of the pearl put in the valet's pocket, she declared, when she was able to continue with her

NO TRUTH IN REPORT THAT EX-PRESIDENT WAS KILLED ON TRIP

A minor evening newspaper of limited circulation, but eager to get more, startled a small section of this city to-day by printing a rumor that had originated in Wall street to the effect that ex-President Roosevelt had been "killed in Africa."

The report was a fake and was immediately so labeled by the AMERICAN.

Wall street bears have a daily habit of "killing" some prominent individual in the hope of depressing the stock market. The Roosevelt "killing" was solely for that purpose.

The report was spread all over the country and was promptly denied everywhere.

Finally, by way of London came a cable from Africa and the sensation fell to the ground.

The United Press says: "Wall Street is believed to have been responsible for a rumor to-day which got on the commercial wires and spread all over the country to the effect that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and been killed while hunting in Africa.

"While the United Press was unable to get into immediate touch with its correspondent with the Roosevelt party, which is now on an inland hunting expedition, inquiry at Nairobi brought the reply that there was no truth in the story."

Lyman Abbott, the editor of the Outlook, of which Theodore Roosevelt is associate editor, said in New York this afternoon that he had heard of no accident to the former President and believed that there was no foundation for the story.

"Had anything happened to Mr. Roosevelt," he said, "I believe that we would surely have heard. I attach no significance to the rumors of his death. I received a letter from him a few days ago, in which he stated that he was well, as were the other members of the paryt. That is the last word I have had from him."

The plans for the Roosevelt expedition indicate that to-day he is on the Guas Ingishu plateau. On October 26 Colonel Roosevelt, with several companions, left Londiana and the following day reached the Aldama ravine. It was from there that the last word from the party was received, sent via Nairobi on October 27.

The party was then planning to hurry to the Guas Plateau and then to return to Londiana in five weeks.

The plateau is in the northern part of Kisumu province and is one of the finest hunting grounds in the world. It is a grassy country, fairly level and fringed with trees, the central part being grassy.

The party is believed to have proceeded westward from Aldama ravine to Nandi Boma, a few days off. Nandi Boma is a British station.

Late this afternoon a cable dispatch from London said: "The British colonial office declares untrue the rumor of Theodore Roosevelt's death."

GOOD COTTON SUPPORT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Aggressive support by the big Southern bull leaders forced cotton prices in the active months from five to fifteen points above yesterday's close around noon to-day, after an opening averaging around twenty points off. PETITIONS TO BE LIMITED TO 6,000 NAMES

Filing of mayoralty nomination papers under Plan Two may cause big legal complications. The Courts may be called upon to decide:

If a voter signs more than one nomination paper does it invalidate his signature on all?

Can the signature on the first one he signs be certified and stand if he has signed more than one?

Can the Election Commissioners limit the number of names they will certify on any mayoralty nomination to 6,000 or to a few over 5,000?

First Signature to Stand.

The Election Commissioners conferred with Corporation Counsel Babson to-day as to the law on nomination papers. After the conference, the board announced:

When a voter signs more nomination papers for each office than there are persons to be elected to that office the signature on the first nomination paper [illegible] the Election Commissioners is the only one which the board will [illegible]

This decision has already precipitated a legal argument. Many lawyers maintain that if a voter signs more than one mayoralty nomination he invalidates his signature on each and all of them.

Limited to 6,000 Names.

When the Elections Board took up the question of what it shall do if any mayoralty candidate tries to shut out other candidates by filing a paper with many thousand more signatures than the law requires, it decided not to certify more than 6,000 names on any paper. If the work of the Election commission office becomes too rushed to enable it to handle the work, only a few more than 5,000 signatures will be certified on any candidate's papers.

This raises the question:

Supposing a voter's name is on a paper containing too many signatures for his signature to be certified, will the fact that he has signed it debar him from signing the paper of another candidate who only obtains 5,000 or a few more signatures?

NIGHT RIDERS BUSY.

EARTH TO HIT COMET'S TAIL

"Halley's comet will not only pass across the face of the sun on May 18, but the earth will pass through the tail of the comet," said Director Pickering of the Harvard University Observatory to-day to a representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN. "The tail of the comet is made up of gases, acetylene, carbonic and several others. The gas will be rarified, so that we shall not perceive it.

"In case these gases were apparent to the people the result would be very disagreeable. In 1860, when another comet was passing, there was a great display of shooting stars. We may have such a manifestation when Halley's comet passes us.

"The comet called Halley's comes near the sun every seventy-five years or so. Scientists knew that the comet was due next Spring. The matter then was precisely as if we knew where a railroad was, but didn't know where the train was on the track. So the several astronomers began to watch for the comet and to figure what time it would arrive at the sun station, so to speak. The Rev. Father G. H. Searle, calculates that the comet will cross the sun's face May 18, and as he is a careful observer his calculations are probably correct."

PASTOR AFTER LICENSE BOARD

HAVERHILL, Nov. 5.—The Rev. Frederick B. Greul, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, has filed a petition with the Municipal Council for the removal of the license commissioners, John M. Roche, Herbert F. Taylor and Haber F. McKenna, preferring six separate charges against them.

Dr. Greul alleges that the commissioners granted licenses to five firms unfit to hold licenses of the first and fourth class, that they granted licenses to firms convicted of illegal selling in the District Court, and that they granted licenses to firms which at the time of application had not the necessary facilities to carry on a victualling business and that the board had not made the required inspection of the premises.

SAY POLICE CONSPIRED TO JAIL CHINESE

Claiming that Warry Charles and Joe Guey were victims of a Chinese-police conspiracy the lawyers for Charles and Guey, who are under sentence of death for the Oxford place murders, appeared before the Pardon Committee of the Governor's Council to-day and appealed for a pardon for Charles and Guey.

They claimed that they could produce three or more witnesses who would testify that there was such a conspiracy. They said that they would produce three white men who would say that they had been given or offered money to testify against Charles. They named these witnesses as follows: Peter C. Sebastian, Michael C. Dougherty and Abram J. Rich.

They said that the conspiracy was conducted at No. 25 Harrison avenue, which was the headquarters of the police during the investigation of the murders.

Routed Gang of Smugglers.

The lawyers who appeared for Charles and Guey are Harvey N. Pratt and General Charles W. Bartlett of Boston and Frank Moss, the celebrated lawyer and ex-police commissioner of New York.

Mr. Pratt, in behalf of Charles, said that the conspiracy to dispose of him was the consequence of Charles's activity in behalf of law and order in New York and Boston.

He said that Charles was fifty-five years old and had been forty years in this country. At the age of nineteen he married Mary Whiting, daughter of a Colorado contractor, and had all his life tried to become the equal of white men. In New York Charles broke up, for the United States Government, an extensive Chinese smuggling plot.

He said that his Chinese enemies tried to railroad Charles to jail in New oYrk, but they failed. During the Lexow investigation at New York Charles got evidence of corruption between the "Moyor of Chinatown" and the police.

Put Price on His Head.

He was held by a New York policeman while Chinese assaulted him. Frank Moss, one of the counsel for the defence, will tell the Governor's Council about the events there.

New York got too hot for Charles and he came to Boston. He exposed a lottery game for which he was assaulted. The price of $3,000 was put on his head.

"We will show that the case against Charles and Joe Guey was prepared by Chinamen, taken to John F. Linton at No. 25 Harrison avenue, thence to the police and thence to the District-Attorney," said Mr. Pratt.

Mr. Pratt went over the Chinese evidence against Charles and Guey, showed why he believed it unreliable and gave his reasons for believing it was largely manufactured by the plotters.

Mr. Pratt said that on the night of the murder two Chinamen were arrested at Worcester; that three weeks later a Chinaman named Yee Watt went to a man and said, "Do you want to make some easy money, and can you bring another man here who also wants to make some easy money."

Coached in Story.

"These men whose evidence we have are Peter C. Sebastian and Michael C. Dougherty," said Mr. Pratt. "We will show that three weeks after the arrest at Worcester these men went to No. 25 Harrison avenue and were there told to tell this story; that on the afternoon of Friday, August 2, they were in Brookline, waiting for an inward bound car and saw a big good-looking Chinaman pointing out a Worcester car to two small, insignificant Chinamen, and then the two Chinamen, who had been arrested, and the two pretending witnesses came to town on an Allston car.

"They got $25 each. After they had told this story to the lawyers, Dougherty and Sebastian went to No. 25 Harrison avenue. Yee Watt went inside, got a roll of bills and gave them $25 more.

"Sebastian will tell you that this story was not true; that he wasn't in Brookline at all, nor did he see Charles there or any place else. Sebastian never appeared in court.

"Dougherty was not so fortunate. In December Yee Watt introduced him to Linton and he was told by Linton that his story must be changed.

"Dougherty finally decided that he wouldn't tell the story. He told Linton that he was sick of the whole business. Linton told him to go to see Yee Watt. Yee Watt said, 'You go ahead and tell the story I told yo uto and you can have all kinds of money you want.'

"He did go and tell his story to the district attorney."

SCORES DEFY COLD TO HEAR FARRAR SING

Fully seven hundred and fifty persons, mainly women and girls, crowded around the doors of Symphony Hall this afternoon to hear Geraldine Farrar sing and the Symphony Orchestra rehearse for to-morrow night's concert. Many of them camped at the doors as early as 8 o'clock and endured the wind and cold for the five hours until the doors were opened at 1:15 o'clock.

When the doors were swung open 505 persons were admitted and the other hundreds, bitterly disappointed after their long wait, were turned away.

There were girls of fourteen and women of sixty in the line and in the crowd that held forth on the cold stone steps of the big music hall. Many of them came with camp stools and some brought their knitting and they did their best to appear comfortable if they were not enjoying themselves. All were clad in furs or other heavy wraps and in some ways they resembled a crowd fortified against the weather for a football game.

Every person in the patient throng was provided with bundles containing luncheon. Many of the women brought boxes of candy and these they laughingly passed around among their neighbors.

There were scores of men in the crowd, too, but they were conspicuous by their scarcity among so many women, young and old. The men tried to appear as though they were having the times of their lives. Owing to the fact that every person there was jealous of his or her chance to "get in first" there was little moving around, and had not the sun blazed down on the crowd there would have been many blue hands and noses from the chill wind which swirled around the corner at Huntington and Massachusetts avenues.

NEWTON FUND FOR Y. M. C. A. OVER HALF

NEWTON, Nov. 5.—The big clock on the Newton Y. M. C. A. building passed the half-way mark at the close of the first day of the campaign to raise $150,000 for a new building. There were received subscriptions of $27,967, which, with the $50,200 announced last evening, brought the total to $77,897. The first contribution was given by an anonymous friend, who went into the association rooms and handed General Secretary Harry W. Bascom a $100 bill. He was the same man who during the Boston canvass contributed anonymously ten bills of similar denomination.

MAINE WOMAN KILLS MOOSE IN BATTLE

GREENVILLE, Me., Nov. 6.—Mrs. Seward Worcester of this place has the distinction of being the only woman to shoot a moose in the Maine woods this season. Mrs. Worcester followed a moose track for five hours, near Indian pond, before she sighted the animal, a big bull, standing half hidden in a small growth a few rods from the main tote road. Before she could raise her rifle to shoot, the big bull charged her. She side-stepped behind a big tree and as the bull went racing oy gave him three shots from her magazine rifle. The moose weighed over 1,000 pounds.

HUNTER SHOOTS GUIDE INSTEAD OF DEER

BINGHAM, Me., Nov. 5.—John Durgin of The Forks, a guide, was shot in mistake for a deer Wednesday afternoon, near Will Forsyth's camp, by another hunter.

Durgin was going through the woods carrying a canvas knapsack on his back. In the dim light of the woods it looked exactly like a deer. The other hunter, thinking he was aiming at a deer, fired. The bullet entered Durgin's back, just above his hip, coming out the other side of the spine.

FINANCE BOARD PUTS CHECK ON HIBBARD BOOM

The Finance Commission this afternoon took a hand in the mayoralty situation by warning Mayor Hibbard of the statute providing that no salaried officer or employe of the city should be a member of any political committee or circulate petitions for signatures.

The communication of the Finance Commission is generally accepted to be indirectly aimed at City Collector Brown, who has been prominently mentioned as the man who would direct Mayor Hibbard's campaign for re-election. The communication follows:

> Sir: The commission respectfully requests Your Honor to call the attention of the heads of departments to Section 26 of Chapter 3 of the revised ordinances of 1898, which provides that: "no salaried officer or employe of the city, not elected by popular votte, shall be an officer of any political caucus or a member of any political committee or convention——." Under this ordinance it would seem ti be illegal for any officer or employe of the city, except such as have been elected by popular vote, to serve as members of political committees in the interest of any candidate for office. Such political activity not only violates the ordinances, but also tends to demoralize the public service, and, therefore, should be prohibited by executive order upon pain of discharge.
>
> The commission also recommends that the heads of departments be requested to notify all their employes not to circulate petitions for signatures in the interest of any candidate for office during the hours in which the city is entitled to their services, as the public funds should not be used for campaign purposes. Respectfully submitted, JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
> Chairman Finance Commission.

WIFE'S SUIT A SEQUEL TO KIDNAPPING

FITCHBURG, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Alice B. Hale, wife Julius F. E. Hale, a widely known piano salesman and broker of this city, has brought suit against her husband for divorce. The libel filed with the clerk of the Superior Court, which charges the husband with cruel and abusive treatment and non-support, is returnable in Worcester, December 6.

The Hales came into prominence about a month ago, when, following a series of family disagreements, Mrs. Hale kidnapped their five-year-old daughter Dorothy from the Edgerly school. The kidnapping and subsequent results caused a sensation.

Mrs. Hale left her husband after a quarrel early in October and, it is said, they agreed not to trouble one another again. Shortly afterward Mr. Hale published an advertisement forbidding any one to charge bills contracted by his wife to him. This angered Mrs. Hale, and to get revenge she planned to kidnap the child. She drove to the Edgerly school at Pearl and North streets in an automobile during the forenoon recess. Dorothy was playing with the other children when her mother called and she ran to the auto and was taken in. Mrs. Hale ordered the chauffeur to drive to Ayer and with the child boarded a train for Boston.

As soon as he learned of the disappearance of his daughter, Mr. Hale secured Attorney Clark A. Batchelder to act for him. He hired detectives who located the mother and child in Boston. Hale petitioned the Probate Court for the custody of the child, but the case was settled by agreement, Mrs. Hale's mother being made guardian and custodian of the child.

The Hales were married in 1895 and have lived in Leominster and Fitchburg. Walsh & Walsh, counsel for Mrs. Hale, filed the libel, and Mr. Hale was notified of the suit as he stepped off the train from Boston. It is probable that Hale will contest the suit.

Hale lives on Longwood avenue, and is a well-known broker. He was formerly a piano salesman and rattan worker, having been employed in Gardner, South Ashburnham, Leominster and Boston.

TWO POSSUMS GIFTS TO TAFT

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5.—President Taft and his party, together with Governor Brown and staff and fifty invited guests, were entertained in Savannah to-day. Following the elaborate banquet of last night the guests were up early for the celebration to-day. The streets were one mass of color, flags, pictures and bunting being used. At 9 o'clock the party boarded the United States revenue cutter Yamacraw for a trip down the harbor. Returning from the coast trip the party was taken in autos to the Casino at Thunderbolt. Marsh hens, whiting shrimp crabs, turtle eggs and other sea food was the offering at luncheon.

WESTINGHOUSE SLATED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—It is announced in the Electrical Record that George Westinghouse is to be the next president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

BRADFORD OUT FOR SINGLE TAX

Gamaliel Bradford of Boston appeared before the special commission on taxation at the State House to-day in favor of abolishing the tax on personal property and laying the entire tax on real estate. Congress now has the power, said Mr. Bradford, to levy an income tax. The surprising thing is that the Democrats, with their theories of State rights, are in favor of this. "The thing which has really destroyed Boston," he declared, "is its system of taxing personal property and the country towns benefit by the men who are driven out of Boston to avoid this tax."

FRANCE AWAITS STEINHEIL SENSATION TO SATIATE ITS MAD CRAVING FOR THRILLS

testimony that she was forced to accuse him by journalists, detectives and friends.

At one point in the proceedings the prosecuting attorney shouted at Mme. Steinheil: "You're a liar!" Maitre Aubin jumped to his feet with a vigorous protest for his client, in which he berated the prosecutor.

"You have no right to speak in that manner while my client is unconvicted," the counsel for the defence cried.

The prosecutor answered vehemently, and both lawyers spoke at the same time, decrying one another, while the spectators, taking sides, threw the court into an uproar. Mme. Steinheil was greatly agitated. At every instance of the kind she seemed to grow markedly fatigued, and her appearance at the end of the day was much more haggard than when she entered the court.

A new attack on the methods of the defence marked the opening of the third session of the trial of Mme. Steinheil to-day. M. De Valles, denounced the methods employed by the accused woman, and declared that the "confession" of Rene Collard, the actor, who as Jean Lefebre, declared himself guilty of the crimes of which the "Red Widow" is accused, was but a trick to influence the jury in the woman's favor or else a means to gain entrance to the court. The court branded the actor as a "faker."

Prisoner Keeps Her Nerve.

When the "Tragic Widow" entered the court room to-day to face another grilling examination there was little trace of the listlessness which at times marked her attitude on the first days. She was tense, but calm, and evidently prepared for another siege of fencing with the judge.

The session opened with the denunciation of the defence and of the actor to which Maitre Aubin, attorney for Mrs. Steinheil, took exception. After a sharp clash Judge de Valles turned his attention to the gabardines which, it is alleged by the defence, the band of murderers wore when they bound and killed M. Steinheil, the painter, and Mme Steinheil's stepmother, Mme. Japy, on May 31, 1908.

After the murder it was discovered that two gabardines were missing from the wardrobe room of the Jewish theatre. It is this point that the defence has embodied as one of the features of its case, Mme. Steinheil charging that the actors disappeared from the theatre at the time the gabardines were lost sight of.

The president of the court declared that only two of the long, sinister robes had been taken from the theatre. Maitre Aubin declared that the number was three. The three men whom Mme. Steinheil described as being directed by a red-headed woman in the attack on her family were, according to her story, clad in gabardines. In an exciting tilt with the court Mme. Steinheil declared vehemently that two actors dropped from sight shortly after the crime. The court retorted: "In the natural course of events the company changed its personnel, many of the members going away."

Quick Retort to Judge.

With one of those flashes that have shown the accused woman's mind to be as keen as that of any of her accusers, Mme. Steinheil interposed, "Then the police should have found them."

This remark was received by the spectators much as they could take a clever thrust if witnessing a fencing bout. Then the attack on the witness was resumed. The prosecutor began a line of questioning intended to draw from Mme. Steinheil the possible motive of the band she accuses of killing her stepmother and husband.

"On the night of the murder there were $1,300 in the house," she declared, to show that the slayer's purpose was robbery.

This explanation is in accord with the declaration she made when she was first arrested.

The scene to-day was more harrowing than those of the first two days of the trial.

It was declared that the intention of the prosecution is nothing more than to follow the lines of a police examination—to put the accused woman through "the third degree" day after day with unflagging vigilance until at last she will break down under the terrific strain.

If Mme. Steinheil does that France will have a sensation that will satiate its craving for thrills.

Then, say the woman's opponents, will the true story of the death of President Faure come to light. Then will a scene of the country's famous names be dragged into the case. Then will the ramifications of this beautiful woman's mysterious, and at times sinister influence be made public and a dozen enigmas be cleared. It was in the hope of hearing about her connection with President Faure that many struggled through the mob and entered court to-day.

COURT ROOM SCENE WHERE 'RED WIDOW' IS FIGHTING FOR LIFE

By VANCE THOMPSON.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Picture a pallid woman, beautiful enough to have captured peers and presidents of France, standing in tragic black in the grim old Court of the Assizes, her arms uplifted, her slender frame trembling with a tumult of emotions, her soft voice breaking into sobs as she flings back answers to the swift-volleyed questions of three red-robed judges on the bench, an actress playing for her life, not only to the few breathless hundreds in the courtroom, but to all the world outside.

Project into the tense scene a scrawny, tattered derelict from the alleys of Montmartre, who strides before the judges and cries:

"She isn't guilty; I was one of the slayers; I was the red-haired woman."

This was the drama enacted in the second day's session of the trial of Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, accused of killing her husband and her stepmother, and suspected of a pitiless part in the strange end of Felix Faure, once a president of France.

Duel Becomes Battle.

Thrilling enough yesterday the duel between Mme. Steinheil and the merciless Viscount de Valles, president of the court, became a battle to-day. Three judges at once fired their verbal broadsides at the quivering woman. They bullied her, denounced her, sneered at her, and rebuked her when she dared to cry out against their pitiless onslaught.

But they could not shake her story. She repeated her description of the three men in black robes and the red-haired woman who had come to her home on the night of May 30 and had killed her husband and her stepmother, after tying her (Mme. Steinheil) in her bed.

When the man who entered so dramatically on the scene declared that only he and one other had committed the crime she turned away and said he must be an imposter, for she knew there had been four assailants.

Once again, but only once, mention was made of her acquaintance with President Faure. This was the first time in the trial that he had been spoken of by name.

Mme. Steinheil was being questioned about the pieces of a visiting card of Mme. Maseline, with the name of a customer written in, which she had asserted was dropped by the fleeing assailants.

Her Love for Widower.

"Was it at the home of Mme. Maseline in Havre that you met President Faure," interjected the judge.

It is becoming evident that the court will seek to establish as a motive which might have caused the woman to kill her husband the fact that she was in love with a wealthy land owner of the Department of Ardennes, a widower with four children.

This man is supposed to have been M. Borderel, who made a statement to the authorities following the arrest of Mme. Steinheil in which he said she had once declared to him:

"I love only you. My husband leads a life of infamy. I hate him. I have two hatreds in my life—my husband and my mother, who compelled me to marry him. I will get a divorce and you shall marry me."

At the opening of to-day's session President De Valles warned the jury against being moved by the arts and eloquence of the prisoner. He said:

"Her tears and indignation are all calculated to affect you."

"So may I not even proclaim my innocence in my own way?" cried Mme. Steinheil.

Prosecutor Angered.

From this first crossing of swords it was a ceaseless, vehement duel between the lonely woman and the magistrate, who by the anomaly of French justice is both judge and prosecutor.

"Why did you send away your watch-dog that night?" cried M. De Valles."

"If I had been about to commit the awful deeds which are charged against me there would have been no need to remove a familiar dog," she replied, acutely.

The president read the deposition of Dr. Sacquet, who had found her tied in her bed.

"Heaven," she cried at last, "must I fight for my life against a dog and a gag of common wool?"

President De Valles lost his temper.

She launched at last into a continuous outcry, proclaiming her innocence, denouncing the prosecutor. De Vales was on his feet, shouting at the top of his voice, trying to drown out her pleadings. As she paused at last, he declared:

"You must restrain these outbursts of feminine temper."

"And you, Monsieur le President," she parried quickly.

"There was a novel published forty years ago in which a murder was done by people in black robes. You read it when you were sixteen, and on that you planned your crimes," declared the judge.

Again she was a match for him.

"At sixteen," she said, "I was flirting, not planning to commit a crime twenty-four years later."

The procureur general came to the aid of the president and also one of the associate judges. For ten minutes the three of them shouted and stormed at the woman, who stood, haggard and exhausted, clinging to the edge of the dock, and trying her best to answer the baiting of the three at once.

It was just as she seemed ready to drop that M. Aubin, her counsel, stood up abruptly, topping the turmoil. He said a letter had just been handed to him which he wished to read. He added:

"Doubtless we have all received many just such letters from cranks."

He read the missive amid impressive silence. It said:

"I Am the Red-Haired Woman."

"Monsieur Aubin: I can no longer bear the burden of my guilt. I declare that I am an accomplice in the murder of Steinheil. I am the red-haired woman. I have the wig in my pocket.

(Signed) "Jean Lefevre."

Immediately there shambled into the court room a sallow-faced lad of twenty, who, in a whining, Apache voice, declared:

"I am the red-haired woman."

He took out a red wig and laid it on the counsel table. Aubin shot rapid questions at him. He said he had met a friend on the night of the tragedy and had consented to join him in the robbery of the Steinheil mansion in the Impasse Rondin.

He said he had dressed himself as a woman in the street behind the Pantheon, and then had entered the house with a key that he gave an accurate description of, the stairs and hall rooms of the house. But, he insisted, "There were only two of us—I and my friend."

Suspected a Trap.

Mme. Steinheil, who had leaned forward excitedly when the man first appeared, lost interest when she heard his first statement.

"If you say there were only two, there is no truth in your story," she murmured, looking listlessly at the man. Then she sank into her seat and paid no heed while the judges and lawyers wrangled over the Apache.

She said later that she believed the episode was arranged by the police as part of the third degree, administered in public and that she declined to fall into the trap.

The new comer told of having seen Mme. Steinheil tied and of seeing the body of Mme. Japy after his friend had killed her. Then he had become frightened and had run away. The friend had come to him later and said that he had stolen 8,000 francs from the house.

The recital was for the most part in the words of the newspaper accounts of the tragedy. But the judge declared, "I will stop the case and have this investigated."

Instantly Mme. Steinheil was on her feet. "Oh, no, no, go on," she cried.

It was evident she was almost at the end of her endurance and a recess was granted. Lefevre was arrested and held for examination.

MISSING GIRL A BRIDE.

After an absence of four days from her home in Melrose, pretty twenty-year-old Tina De Vito has returned. It was said to-day that the young lady had simply gone away to get married and was now the bride of Albert Forti of Wakefield, who is employed at a rattan factory where the girl worked. The ceremony was performed in this city according to the report.

GERMAN LINER ASHORE.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The German liner Gouverneur is ashore near Lourenco Marques, Southeast Africa, according to a dispatch received to-day by Lloyds from Hamburg. The report said that it was feared the vessel will be a total loss as her hull is badly damaged and all attempts to tow her off have been unsuccessful.

STEEL DEFENCE KEEPS UP FIGHT

The hearing on the steel case before Judge Harris in the Superior Court to-day was marked by a battle between attorneys for the Government and the defence over the admission as evidence of a number of deposit slips in the National Shawmut Bank and of transcripts of accounts in this bank and the International Trust Company. The transcripts of accounts were those of the G. W. & F. Smith Iron Company.

Henry E. Edes, bookkeeper of the International Trust Company, whose testimony was interrupted yesterday, was called to the stand to-day.

He testified that following May 1, 1906, several accounts of $26 each were charged to the account of C. N. Fitts, financial depositary of the Steel Men's Bureau of Information. He named May 3, 4, 5, 9 and 11 as days on which such items were charged to the account of Fitts.

Clarence E. Donovan, bookkeeper of the National Shawmut Bank, also testified.

FREIGHT MEN EXPECT PEACE

It is believed that an offer of arbitration has been made by some outside organization in the trouble between the New Haven clerks and the New Haven railroad officials. It was said by both parties in New Haven to-day that there is no danger of a strike.

If the New Haven clerks strike they will have the full moral and financial support of the local clerks on the Boston & Maine system. At a monster meeting of Boston & Maine clerks at No. 16 Canal street, at which a number of New Haven clerks were present, action binding the Boston & Maine to support the strikers was taken.

YOUNG EXPLORERS SAFE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Leith of this city have received a telegram announcing their two sons, who are exploring in the Hudson Bay country, are well. They were thought to have been lost. The explorers were to have returned by October 1.

WASHINGTON, HANOVER AND ELM STS.

ARMY FLYERS STRIKE SNAG

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 5.—The Wright aeroplane in which Lieutenants Lahm and Humphreys of the United States signal corps were making an experimental flight to-day struck ground and was badly damaged. The occupants escaped injury.

The machine was about eight feet from the ground, Lieutenant Lahm being in charge of the levers when in attempting to make a turn into the west course, not sufficient room was allowed for the turn. The magneto also "missed" with the result that the machine dipped, the left wing striking the ground with much force.

Immediately the machine careened to the right and the right wing in turn struck the ground and dragged along for a few feet. The machine stopped. The officers alighted unhurt, but an examination of the aeroplane showed that not alone were the braces cracked, but the main part of the machine was badly broken.

CHAUFFEUR IS KILLED.

EAST BROOKFIELD, Nov. 5.—Frank Brigham, a chauffeur of East Brookfield, while returning from a hunting trip on his motorcycle, collided with a wood team and was instantly killed. The team was driven by Alphonse Howe of this place, who claims the lamp on the motorcycle was not lighted.

NICARAGUAN CHIEF KILLED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 5.—General Castillo Chammoro of the government forces, was killed in the battle at Paso de las Lajas, where President Zelaya's army lost fifteen men. Reports received from the field to-day indicate that the rebels, whose loss was heavy, have fled toward Pama.

ARRESTED BECAUSE HE MISSED TRAIN

FALL RIVER, Nov. 5.—Andrew Berkman, a wholesaler of Boston, missed train connections when he was due to appear in the District Court. When the case was called, Judge McDonough ordered a default entered and issued a capias for his arrest. An hour later Mr. Berkman appeared and he was placed under arrest.

AVALON IS WRECKED ON JAMAICA COAST

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 5.—The Norwegian steamer Avalon, under charter to the Atlantic Fruit Company, went ashore at Woodstock Point, on the north coast, due to an accident to her steering gear.

The captain reports the vessel is likely to be a total loss.

STETSON SCHISM IS IGNORED BY BOSTON CHURCH, SAYS FARLOW

Following the exoneration of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson by her followers in the New York Christian Science Church, Alfred Farlow, head of the board of publication of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, to-day makes several important statements.

One of Mr. Farlow's declarations is to the effect that any act of Mrs. Stetson's followers in the New York churhc cannot affect the finding of the directors of the Mother Church in Boston, by which Mrs. Stetson was stripped of her leadership and right to practice healing for three years, and several other leaders of that branch church reduced to the ranks.

One of the accusations made against the New York adherents was that they were actually trying to kill Archibald McClellan, editor of the Christian Science Sentinel, by thought, or Malicious Animal Magnetism, as described by Mrs. Eddy.

Not Science Teaching.

Mr. Farlow to-day would only make this reference to these charges: "I desire to say that the peculiar teachings and practices described in the public press in connection with this New York situation are not in keeping with the teachings of Christian Science."

The New York church head read evidence given by Miss Ensworth, a pupil of Mrs. Stetson, who declared that her teacher had said of the Christian Science editor:

"If your place is in God, go; if your place is elsewhere, go there, even if it be under six feet of earth."

This charge of Malicious Animal Magnetism against Mrs. Stetson, which was one of the principal reasons for her temporary deposition by the Mother Church, was declared to be without foundation by the trustees of the First Church of New York, and this action was adopted after a bitter fight in the congregational meeting there yesterday by a narrow margin.

Mother Church Not Affected.

Discussing this, Mr. Farlow said: "As I understand the situation, the opinion of the New York church concerning the findings of the Mother Church does not in any way affect these findings. As a matter of course it is not within my jurisdiction to foresee and foretell the future conduct of the Mother Church in respect to the New York situation.

"It is to be hoped that in time all concerned will agree that the Mother Church is correct in its findings; that is, that all will agree with the Mother Church as to what constitutes the true teaching and practice of Christian Science. Christian Scientists will wait trustingly and patiently for that end.

"The Christian Science Church is charitable to all its members. Its prime object is to cast out evils and to save the individual. The discipline of an individual is intended to result in his good as well as the good of the entre community. One of the important duties of the Directors of the Mother Church is to maintain the purity of Christian Science and prevent the promulgation of an adulteration in the name of Christian Science."

An Authorized Definition.

"The word magnetism was first applied to a peculiar attraction of iron ore, and the word in itself has no significance, being annulled merely because the property was discovered in the city of Magnesia. Later the term 'animal' was joined to it, and it was used with reference to a supposed influence which one person was believed to be able to exert over another by physical contact.

"The meaning of the term 'animal magnetism' has gradually broadened, and now includes any and all supposed action of the human mind. By this description it may be seen that from the very introduction of the term to the present time the word has been applied to that particular power, influence, or force which is supposed to be possessed by the creature in contradistinction to the Creator. Hence the propriety of the name in Christian Science.

" * * * Since Science has introduced the proposition that God is the only real Mind, the carnal mind in all its varied manifestations is naturally, in the interest of self-preservation, arrayed against it. Therefore every wilful phase of this supposed human opposition which is aroused by the introduction of Science is malicious. Hence the use of the term 'malicious animal magnetism.' It is called magnetism because it refers to a supposed power independent of God; and malicious, in keeping with the Scriptural declaration, 'The carnal mind is enmity against God.'

As Named by Mrs. Eddy.

"Mrs. Eddy refers to it as the 'human antipode of Divine Science.' It is a term which is broad enough to include all that is opposed to God. It includes every phase of evil, every phase of the human antagonism to truth.

"The subtle arguments of malicious animal magnetism can have no effect upon those are aware of its presence and who understand that God is the only real mind or power. Malicious animal magnetism is that which the evil-minded through mental malpractice seek to use in opposition to the good influence of the divine mind. It is known to all students of psychology, and we think we may safely say to all reasonably well-informed persons, that one may be mentally dominated by another if he is not awake to this evil and prepared to resist its deception, not because evil is power, but because it deceiveth the unwary.

"There are, and have been for many years, schools which advertise their ability to teach a method of subjugating the will of another for the purpose of ruling him and for the purpose of subserving selfish ends. We submit that no man has a moral right to formulate or influence the acts of another except when invited to do so, though he has a right to entertain the sweeping impersonal thought that God shall ordain all things and guide all men."

WORK FOR 500 GIRLS IN RENOVATED MILL

HALLOWELL, Me., Nov. 5.—A syndicate has taken a lease of the cotton mill which has been idle for many years. The old mill will have the music of machinery singing melodies delightful to the ears before the last days of November if things pan out as promised by the promoters. The new industry will be that of manufacturing overalls, jumper coats, canvas gloves, cotton underwear, etc.

The head of the concern says that at least 500 hands, mostly girls, will be employed.

WEDDING PUT OFF; GIRL LEAPS TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5.—Celia Duberstein, aged nineteen, despondent because she fancied that her sweetheart in New York was attempting to evade marriage with her, ended her life by jumping from a window on the ninth floor of the Card building, 115 feet above the ground. The girl had received a letter from her fiance asking her to be patient and wait a while longer.

WIFE FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

ST. PAUL, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Mina Arbogast, charged with the murder of her husband, Louis Arbogast, a meat dealer, was found not guilty by a jury. Arbogast was murdered with an axe while asleep. The bed was soaked with gasoline and set on fire. Mrs. Arbogast was badly burned. Louise Arbogast, the eldest daughter, will be tried on the same charge.

He has made a tour through the West and South to spread the gospel of Jewish regeneration, and is now beginning his work in New England.

EXTRA COUPON OFFER IS MADE FOR AMERICAN'S HOUSEHOLD PREMIUMS

Attention! Two emergency household premium coupons will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN and will be accepted in place of any two missing coupons (except for missing Sunday dates) in any one set. Remember this. Watch Page 2 of the Main News Section next Sunday for these emergency coupons, but, keep this in mind, these emergency coupons will not be accepted for missing Sunday dates.

The announcement of the emergency coupons met with instantaneous approval of readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN. The list of premiums being offered has proved a huge and agreeable surprise to all. Never before has there been so much interest displayed in a premium offer in Boston.

New Display Opened.

Still another addition has been made to the list of places where the premiums offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN are on exhibition, this time in West Medford. It is located in the general department store and library conducted by N. E. Wilber, at Nos. 476-478 High street, diagonally across the street from the Boston & Maine depot. The opening of the West Medford display makes four displays to date in addition to the full display in the BOSTON AMERICAN building.

The premium plan has made a hit. The announcement that any reader may secure as many premiums as he or she has coupons for, has proved most popular. The hundreds of callers at the premium Department and at the various branch displays every day declare they will not be satisfied with one article. Some enormous values are represented in the premium so far announced and among the others which will be announced from time to time. Additions are being made to the list every day.

Watch For New Articles.

Four articles have been announced so far—mission wall clock, Venetian art lamp, library art lamp and set of dishes. Two more surprises will be sprung on Sunday. Watch for them. It will be worth your while.

Meanwhile save your coupons. Start saving the coupons on Page 2. Start to-day. Start any day. It makes no difference when you start. All that is required to secure any of the premiums is thirty coupons, of consective dates, daily and Sunday, and these, with a small cash payment, will entitle you to your choice of any of the articles in the list.

Of the four articles so far announced, a cash payment of $1.95 will be required in addition to the thirty coupons to secure the mission wall clock when called for at the BOSTON AMERICAN office; a cash payment of $2.50 will be required to secure either of the lamps, in addition to the coupons, when called for at the Premium Department and a payment of $2 will secure the dishes, when called for. An extra charge of twenty-five cents will be made for delivery of all these articles, except the clock, on which the delivery charge will be thirty cents.

If you have not already started saving the coupons, start to-day. Remember the coupons must be of consecutive dates.

BROUGHT COLOR TO HER CHEEKS

Then Strength Returned and This Bloodless Woman Became Well.

There are many men, women and even children suffering from anæmia, which means "too little blood." The disease is well named, for the patient actually has a deficiency of blood which affects every part of the body. There is a lack of energy, a characteristic pallor, a sense of suffocating after the least exertion, generally described as a shortness of breath. The disease comes on gradually and is often well advanced before it is recognized.

Too often medical treatment is unsatisfactory and the disease progresses until it becomes hopeless.

A long-standing case, which resisted treatment until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried, is described by Mrs. Clinton E. Hale, of No. 104 Bristol avenue, Lockport, N. Y., in the following statement:

"When I was about fourteen years of age I began to fail rapidly in health. Although I had always been a frail child, I now had to quit school. I was weak and tired out all of the time. In walking fast or going up stairs it seemed that I couldn't walk fast enough to keep up with the heart beats. I had palpitation of the heart and occasional dizzy spells. I became awfully thin and pale. I had no appetite and suffered with indigestion. I didn't have any life or ambition and was sensitive and irritable. I finally became so weak that I could hardly walk.

"The doctors seemed to disagree about my case and their medicine did not help me. My parents were alarmed at my condition and, upon the advice of our minister's wife, had me try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had taken two boxes of the pills I could notice an improvement in my condition. I could eat better, wasn't so weak and my color came back. I took the pills until entirely cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also cured such blood diseases as rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers. Owing to the intimate relation between the blood and nerves, the pills have been found invaluable in nervous diseases.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DUMB GIRL MAY REGAIN SPEECH

A Boston specialist who has examined Tolka Larson aged five years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Larson of No. 224 Brown street, Waltham who for nine months has been paralyzed in one side and lost her power of speach, predicts that in four months more the child will be greatly improved. The child was taken ill with pneumonia. Before she recovered meningitis set in. This caused paralysis of the right side and the child lost her power of speech. During the past month there has been a noticeable change for the better. The progress has been such that in four months more a great improvement is expected and possible ultimate recovery.

HARVARD QUIZZES IN FOOTBALL TIME

Harvard students are greatly incensed at the action of two of the Harvard professors in setting hour examinations for the time of the Cornell game to-morrow, and threaten to clash with the faculty unless the time is changed. This is the first time in many years that this has been done and the students feel that their wishes have been entirely ignored.

The instructors who have thus brought themselves into the limelight of student disfavor are Professor W. Z. Ripley and Assistant Professor Irving Babbit, both of whom have posted notices of examinations for to-morrow afternoon in their respective courses, Economics 9a and French 1b. The students feel that they have been unusually wronged in Economics 9a, inasmuch as Saturday meetings of the course are rarely held and are advertised in the college catalogue as being given "Saturdays at the pleasure of the instructor."

TRUCE DECLARED IN MOROCCAN WAR

MADRID, Nov. 5.—A truce was to-day declared in the Moroccan war. The Riff tribesmen after a long conference with General Martina, commander of the Spanish forces at Melilla, agreed to suspend hostilities and to punish all tribesmen who violated the agreement by attacking the Spaniards. It was declared here that a permanent peace pact would speedily follow. The news of the agreement was received here with joy by the public.

TAFT NOT TEMPTED BY MINT JULEP

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 5.—President Taft was breakfasted by a select gathering of Georgians here and all the delicacies of the South were served up, including a mint julep that had been brewed with consummate skill, and which reposed, apparently harmless, in a green-topped glass that had a perfect barnacle of frosting on the outside. He took the julep in his hand for a moment, but that was as far as he got.

LAYS 35 DEATHS TO NEGLECTED BUOY

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 5.—That the neglected condition of the buoy marking Old Proprietor ledge at the entrance of the Bay of Fundy was responsible for the wrecking of the Donaldson line steamer Hestia and the consequent loss of thirty-five lives is the charge made by third officer S. G. Stewart, the only surviving officer of the Hestia.

SAYS HUSBAND CHOSE BARN AS BEDROOM

"My husband sleep in the barn? Well, yes. But I did not make him do so as he alleges. He preferred the barn—at times."

This is the reply of Mrs. Addie Groves of No. 45 Lowell street, Waltham, to one of the allegations made by her husband, Herbert W. Groves, in papers which he has filed at Reno, Nev., in an action for divorce. Groves belongs to a wealthy family. He has a grown daughter. The wife of late has conducted a dressmaking establishment. The daughter was formerly a high school teacher in Fitchburg.

"Yes," she reiterated," he sometimes found it convenient to take his rest in the barn after prolonged absences from home."

"And my mother was so foolish," interjected the daughter, "as to carry hot coffee to him."

"But he declares that you used abusive language to him, Mrs. Groves," was suggested.

"So it seems. Well, Mr. Groves was one of those men who are all right when nothing crossed him, but the moment he was displeased he raised a roar and swore and talked so loud everyone had to get out of the way. I used to be afraid the neighbors would hear him."

"He did absolutely nothing for his family and my mother worked like a slave at dressmaking to send me through college," added the daughter. "We are now comfortably situated with no thanks to my father."

"But he deserted us, you can make that plain coming from me," said Mrs. Groves. "I would have no difficulty obtaining a divorce here if I wished, but you see my husband had to go away out West where the laws make it easier. Even now I shall prevent it. I will not humor him and let him have his own way under the circumstances. When those who know him hear that he accuses me of abusing him I guess they will laugh."

Mrs. Groves mentions the name of a woman in her papers.

NEW ENGLAND FORTS' NIGHT TARGET WORK

In New England the night firing will take place at Fort Stark on November 10 and at Fort Terry on November 17. Colonel C. J. Bailey, assistant chief of artillery, will witness the firing of Fort Terry, and Captain P. P. Bishop, target practice expert of the coast artillery corps, will go to Fort Stark.

HOME BROKEN UP BY SILK STOCKINGS

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Annie Astley Davis of the Plaza Hotel, who is suing her husband, David Shelby Davis, for separate maintenance, says most of her trouble developed from a story of her girlhood which, in a moment of confidence, she told him. She then told the Court that when she was seventeen Joshua Brand, seventy years old, of New York, offered her a pair of silk stockings if she would let him put them on for her. "It was in New York," she said, "and I was chaperoned by my aunt. I became indignant when the request was made. My husband always said I encouraged the old man, and probably later got the stockings."

MISS VANDERBILT'S ARM NOT AMPUTATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—A rumor that Miss Muriel Vanderbilt had been forced to suffer the amputation of an arm because of her recent accident was set at rest by her mother, in the Vanderbilt home at Westbury, Long Island. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., said: "My daughter suffered a dislocation of one arm and a fracture of the other. She is doing as nicely as can be expected and there has been no operation."

HARVARD PROFESSOR A MULLINS CASE WITNESS.

VON JAGEMANN AND WIFE TELL OF GIRL'S LAST HOURS AT HOME.

the kitchen about 7 o'clock. She was standing in the back doorway looking out. I spoke to her but she did not answer immediately. I carried a book out to her and she turned and thanked me for it.

Failed to Return.

Q.—Did you have some conversation with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you next do? A.—I went into my next door neighbor's across the street.

Q.—Did you see Annie Mullins again that night? A.—No.

Q.—How soon did you return from your neighbors? A.—About half an hour later.

Q.—Did you go into the kitchen next morning? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Annie Mullins that morning? A.—No, she did not come home that night.

Q.—Have you ever seen her since? A.—No, I have not.

This concluded Mrs. Von Jagemann's direct examination and she was then cross-examined by Attorney Winslow.

Q.—What was Annie's religion? A.—She was a Roman Catholic.

Q.—And your religion? A.—I am a Protestant, a Congregationalist.

Q.—Where did Annie attend church? A.—She attended St. Peter's.

Q.—And St. Peter's is in that direction from your home? A.—It is in the direction of North Cambridge.

Q.—So that when Annie left your home at any time to attend church she would go in an entirely different direction from Massachusetts avenue? A.—Yes, from our house she would go just the other way.

Q.—Did Annie go to church regularly? A.—Yes, she was a constant attendant at church.

Q.—And she observed all the holy days of the church? A.—Yes, scrupuously.

Q.—Her death occurred during the Lenten season? A.—Yes.

Q.—And had she observed Lent faithfully? A.—Yes, very faithfully.

Q.—And there was a service this Friday night? A.—Yes.

Wore White Spotted Waist.

Q.—Can you tell the color of the dress that Annie wore that night? A.—I didn't observe. I think it was a wool dress.

Q.—Can you recall what kind of a waist she wore? A.—Yes, it was a white spotted waist.

Q.—Shortly after giving her the magazine you went out on the street to post a letter. A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, weren't you suspicious over Annie's caller, whoever he was, as you went out to post that letter, and didn't you make that a pretext to find out who Annie's caller was? A.—Well, I was suspicious and I did have that idea in view when I went out to post the letter.

Q.—Did you see who the caller was? A.—No, I don't know that she had a caller.

Q.—But you found her by the open door and apparently talking with some one? A.—Yes, but I saw nobody.

Q.—She might have had a caller? A.—Yes, it might have been a man, but it might have been a woman.

Mrs. Von Jagemann answered all questions without hesitation. She spoke in a quiet, dignified manner, although at times she had to be cautioned to raise her voice so that the jury might hear.

Q.—Have you said at any time that you saw a man leaving the yard? A.—No, I never did.

Q.—Did you say anything about a man with a light overcoat? A.—Yes, I said that I saw a man with a light overcoat on the sidewalk when I went out to post the letter.

Q.—Now, Mrs. Von Jagemann, are you sure that that man was not on your front lawn when you first saw him? A.—I am sure he was on the sidewalk when I first saw him.

Q.—Is there a fence in front of your lawn? A.—No.

Q.—Are you sure that the man did not come from your yard? A.—He might have come out of our yard but I did not see him. He was going toward Linnean street and was near the letter box.

Was Short and Thick-Set.

Q.—Describe the man you saw on the front sidewalk with the light overcoat? A.—He was thick-set and short.

Q.—Did he have on a long or short coat? A.—I can't tell.

Q.—Was it light or dark? A.—It was light.

Q.—Did he have on a derby hat; can you tell us that? A.—No, I didn't see his head at all.

Professor and Mrs. von Jagemann, former employers of Annie Mullins, witnesses at trial of her accused slayers to-day.

JAGEMANN HEARD STRANGER'S VOICE

Professor Hans C. Von Jagemann took the witness stand, following his wife. He testified that he was a teacher at Harvard and had been there for the past thirty years. He is about fifty years old. He testified in a low voice with a pronounced accent. He complained of hoarseness. He corroborated his wife's testimony in regard to their employment of Annie Mullins. Assistant District Attorney Hardy then asked:

Q.—Did you see Annie Mullins on March 27th? A.—I saw her at dinner and supper.

Q.—Did you notice anything unusual about her at noon? A.—No.

Q.—When was the last time you saw her? A.—At supper that evening.

Q.—Do you recollect anything unusual about her that evening when you last saw her? A.—I recollect nothing unusual about her. She seemed to be in her usual spirits.

Q.—When did you get through supper that evening? A.—About half past 6.

Thought Girl in Hurry.

Q.—Where did you go after supper? A.—After supper I went to the library and stayed there all evening until nine-thirty or 10 o'clock. Immediately after supper I read the evening paper. Afterwards I worked.

Q.—Where did your wife go after supper? A.—I think she first came into the library where I was.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with her then? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did she then do? A.—She went out to mail a letter.

Q.—After she went out did you hear the dishes and putting them away. It was louder than usual and attracted my [illegible]. It suggested to me at the time [illegible] was in a little hurry and was anxious to get her work done up.

Q.—What did you next hear? A.—I don't recall anything more.

Q.—After your wife came back from mailing the letter where did she go. A.—She came back to the library and then went out to call on a neighbor.

Heard Voices Outside.

Q.—Did you hear anything after your wife went out the second time. A.—I heard Annie go up stairs rather louder than usual. I heard her go out of the house by the back door about twenty-five minutes later. She went through the kitchen after coming down stairs and shut the doors rather noisily when she went out.

Q.—Did you hear anything else? A.—After she went out I heard what seemed to me to be someone speaking to her on the sidewalk. It seemed to be someone who expected her.

Q.—Did you hear her footsteps when she went out? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Did you hear any footsteps outside? A.—I heard the steps of her and one or more persons leaving the house.

Q.—In what direction were they going? A.—I thought they were going toward Linnean street.

During this testimony Mantir sat with his chin resting on his folded hands. His arms were resting on the front rail of the cage. Delorey leaned back with arms folded. Mantir followed closely the testimony of the witnesses, but Delorey seemed uninterested.

Heard Strange Voices.

Q.—Did you hear anyone say something in greeting? A.—No.

Q.—Did you hear anybody speak the name "Annie," or did you hear Annie speak any other name? A.—No, I did not hear any names spoken.

Q.—But you heard the sound of some voices? A.—Yes, I heard voices as if somebody was speaking.

Q.—And as if more than one person was speaking? A.—Yes.

Q.—Could you say if there was a man's voice there? A.—No, I couldn't say, but I know that there was more than one voice.

Q.—And you are positive that you heard footsteps of more than one person. A.—Yes, the footsteps of two or three.

Q.—And they went toward Linnaean street? A.—Yes.

BOYS TELL HOW BODY WAS FOUND IN SQUIRE'S FIELD

Minot Cheever of West Somerville, and Walter Cook, the two boys who discovered the lifeless body of Annie Mullins, followed Professor Von Jagemann as witnesses. The Cheever boy was the first of the pair to testify. He answered the questions of Assistant District Attorney Hardy readily.

Q.—And on the morning of March 28, 1908, you had occasion to pass through the field? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time did you get to the field? A.—I left my house at 8:20 o'clock, just after breakfast and reached the field at 8:25 o'clock.

How Body Was Found.

Q. Now state just what the circumstances were that brought you to the field and what you saw there. A. It was on a Saturday and I did not have to go to school. I had been to Walter Cook's house on the way to the field and we were going to Spy pond. As we passed along by the embankment I saw what appeared to be a heap of rags in about the centre of the field and on the edge of the embankment. I saw something red on the edge of the heap and we both walked over. We found the body of a woman. The red that attracted our attention was the flowers on the woman's hat. The body was lying on its side with the left arm thrown up over the head. We were horrified.

We did not go near the body but kept about ten feet away. Then we hurried across the field to Massachusetts avenue, looking for a policeman. We couldn't find one and we went down to St. Paul's Cemetary and told Mr. Murphy. We went with Mr. Murphy to a little store where he telephoned to the police and then went back to where we had found the body.

Both prisoners listened to the boy's story of how he found the body of Annie Mullins with unchanged demeanor. Mantir's eyes were fixed upon the youthful witness, while Delorey remained in exactly the same disinterested attitude that he assumed when court opened.

The Cheever boy was cross-examined by Attorney Winslow and was asked.

CHIEF URQUHART PRODUCES SLAIN GIRL'S GARMENTS

After John Murphy and John Reagan, employed at St. Paul's Cemetery, had told about the position of the girl's body in Squire's Field, Chief of Police Thomas G. Urquhart of Arlington took the stand.

The chief carried a large paper bo such as is used by florists. The box immediately caught the eye of Mantir. He kept his gaze fixed upon it as the chief made his way to the witness stand.

The sensation of the trial followed as the police official opened the box and took from it the stained garments of Annie Mullins. He identified them as he took them, piece by piece, from the box as the clothes found on the body of the murdered girl on the morning of March 28, 1908.

Beyond the quick glance that Mantir fixed upon the box his expression did not change. He watched Chief Urquhart intently as he testified and followed his motions as he took the clothing from the box. Delorey maintained an unchanged demeanor.

Garments Exhibited.

"We will not take up the time of the court," said District Attorney Higgins at this point, "in having hese garments exhibited now, but will give them over to the defence for any purpose that they may see fit to make of them."

Chief Urquhart was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Hardy:

Q.—When did you arrive at Squires Field on the morning of March 28, 1908? A.—I should say about 9:45 o'clock.

Q.—Now state what you found there? A.—I found a crowd of people surrounding the dead body of a young woman. The body lay at right angles to the embankment of an old gravel pit. Across the throat from the left ear was a horrible gash.

There were gashes on the right side of the throat also. The clothing was stained and there was a pool of blood on the ground nearby. One foot protruded over the embankment. The body lay on the right side with the face toward St. Paul's Cemetery. The hat was tipped over somewhat on the side of the head, the body neatly dressed and with none of the clothes disarranged. The woman wore gloves, also stained.

Q.—These clothes have remained in your custody ever since the morning of the discovery of the body? A.—Yes. I have had them in the police station ever since.

Got Girl's Letters.

Q.—You have thoroughly examined those clothes which are in that box before you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you observed any tears or injuries to them? A.—There are two slices in the velvet collar of the coat.

Q.—You went to where the girl was born for the government? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you obtain certain letters which the girl wrote? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you those letters in court? A.—Yes.

Attorney Winslow at this point addressed the court and said that the defense wanted the letters to use I they deemed them necessary. District Attorney Higgins declared that he saw no connection between them and the case. Judge Fox asked what the letters were and when told that they were from Annie Mullins to her folks at home stated that he thought that counsel ought to settle the question without a court ruling.

Produce Blue Jacket.

Attorney Winslow asked the Chief to produce the coat which Annie Mullins wore on the night of the tragedy. Chief Urquhart took from the box a short blue jacket. Dark brown spots could be seen on it across the court room.

Attorney Winslow took the coat from the Chief and passed it to the men in the jury box. Each juror handled the coat and examined.

Q.—Will you now produce the collar which you found on the body of Annie Mullins?

Chief Urquhart finally found the collar after taking out every piece of clothing in the box. The articles lay strewn about the witness stand. The collar when produced was dark brown in color and indicated that it had been saturated with blood.

Seek Look at Garments.

The collar, the jacket and the girl's shoes were the only articles from the box which were given to the jury. When the collar was produced the women in the courtroom, many of whom did not arrive until nearly noon, craned forward to get a view of it.

As the witness handled the clothing, Delorey bent forward in his cage, placed his hands on the rail and tried to get a view of the exhibits. Mantir sat motionless, his manner unchanged.

This concluded the testimony of Chief Urquhart and John Y. Bellyea of Arlington, a driver for Hartwell's undertaking establishment. He corroborated the testimony given in regard to the positon of the body.

Mrs. Mary Glascoe, first cousin of Annie Mullins, testified to identifying the body of her cousin and to the last Thursday night that the girl spent with her South Boston relatives.

Subject to Fainting Spells.

LABOR LEADERS GOING TO TORONTO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Samuel Gompers and Frank Morrison, president and secretary of the American Federation of Labor, leave Washington to-night for Toronto for the annual convention of the Federation beginning there Monday. Before leaving they will discuss with their attorneys the status of their case before the District Court of Appeals, which has affirmed the jail sentences for contempt of the District Supreme Court in the Bucks Stove and Range Company case. An extension of time will be asked.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. The AMERICAN has quantity and quality.

RICH MAN'S SON TO "HUSTLE FREIGHT"

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Following the lead of his two cousins, Edward and Paul Moore, Nathaniel F. Moore, son of J. H. Moore, one of the three owners of the Rock Island road, will shortly enter the freight department of the company. He proposes to learn the business from the ground up. "I'm tired of loafing," he said to-day in his apartment at the La Salle, "and as some day I will probably have a great deal more interest in the Rock Island road than I have now, I thought it would be well to go to work and learn the real work of a railroad system."

POSTOFFICE REVENUE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—Postmaster-General Hitchcock to-day signed a warrant placing to the credit of the treasury $87,735,165. This amount represents the postoffice revenue collected by the department for the quarter ending June 30, 1909.

DUCHESS CONSUELO, WHO PRESIDED OVER BIG FLOWER SHOW

CURE ALL ILLS BY HARD WORK, SAYS DUCHESS

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, opened the annual show of the Forest Gate and Stratford Amateur Chrysanthemum Society at Stratford.

Her speech on the gospel of work was most interesting and evoked enthusiasm. In accepting the congratulations of friends, she said the love of flowers itself was emplamatic of that striving after ideals which is embedded in every nature. She urged her hearers not to give up their flowers nor their ideals.

"There are a lot of people who go around talking nowadays. When they've nothing else to do they start talking. They go from one platform to another with beautiful wordy pictures of what the world ought to be like—what they'd make it if they had the power. They talk so much and so well that very often one becomes quite bewildered and begins to think they're really heralds of some wonderful millennium when men will no longer be men, when government will be perfect—in fact, when all that's impossible suddenly becomes possible. One gets carried away by them.

"The only difference between the methods of the exhibitor of flowers and the methods of the talkers is that flowers are only produced in such loveliness by dint of hard work, trouble and care, while the latter's results can only be obtainable by changing men and governments into more like angels than human beings."

TENOR CONSTANTINO HERE TO DO HIS BEST

Promising to make his Boston engagement the crowning effort of his career, Florencio Constantino, one of the tenors of the Boston Opera company, has arrived from Italy. With him came Signora Constantino and Mrs. Henry Russell, wife of the director of the company. When he landed at New York Constantino met face to face Oscar Hammerstein, manager of the Metropolitan Opera house, who asserts that Constantino is under contract to him. Black looks were exchanged as their eyes met, but as they left the pier they saluted by waving their hands. Constantino will sing with Mme. Nordica in "La Gioconda" next Monday evening.

WOMEN PLAN NEW RED LIGHT WARFARE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—An attack on the Red Light districts by hundreds of women along lines entirely new is planned by Mrs. Katherine La Verlie Wolfe, one of the White Cross Midnight Missionary Association. She has issued a call for women volunteers, and many have responded. Before long she hopes hundreds will be at work in the South Side levee, standing near the doors of resorts and urging visitors to turn away. Her method, she believes, will strike the law-breakers in their tender spots—their pocket books—and by reducing their revenues, she hopes they will be driven to quit business.

GOSPEL CURE COLLEGE AIM OF WORKERS

The Emmanuel Movement, under the charge of the Rev. Drs. Worcester and McComb, will soon begin the erection of a college in this city, for the express purpose of teaching the principles of psychotherapy.

It has been felt for some time, that the present methods of familiarizing people with what this movement stands for, have been inadequate, and even at times crude, which has impeded the progress of the work in some localities.

A college, where clinics are held, and religion made an important factor in aiding the discouraged and depressed, is more than ever essential in the rapid development of this work.

Dr. Worcester, in explaining the effort to establish a college, said to the BOSTON AMERICAN: "We have seen for some time that the Emmanuel Movement has now passed its experimental stage, and to be better equipped for the demands made upon us, and to represent clearly and intelligently, what this movement means to the churches, we need a band of trained persons, who have not simply picked up their knowledge here and there out of manuals. While this is good to a certain extent, the time has come to take hold of the training of those who have given themselves to this work entirely.

"We need a college here in Boston, where the training will be along systematic lines, and where all the rational features of this movement will be thoroughly studied. The growth of the work requires this, and the emphasis upon the essential truths, which are being set forth, demand trained minds. Many of us cannot attend to all the requests, but with a college as a centre of work and training, we will have ample opportunity to increase our efficiency, and to assert the usefulness of the movement, which cannot be done at this stage of its growth without trained workers. This college will require about $300,000 to start with and it should be erected at once. There are many who are interested in it and will give. No definite plans have as yet been made, but the matter has been talked over several times, and referred to by me in a magazine article last July. I believe when we are prepared to act and to tell the public that we want it to cooperate with us, that there will be a generous response. While we have been criticized, the movement is better understood to-day than ever before, and with a college built, where we can handle our difficulties with trained workers and give a reason for the hope that is in us, we shall easily gain more friends and supporters to our cause, which is nothing more than saying that the Gospel is needed for the sick as well as for the strong."

In the most flourishing condition of its long and useful existence, the British Charitable Society of Boston to-day starts upon the ninety-fifth year of its career. It is the third oldest society of its kind in this country. Last night, at Young's Hotel, President John F. Masters presided at the annual meeting. Mr. Masters was re-elected president. The other officers chosen were: Thomas J. Bowker, vice president; F. J. Stack, treasurer; Thomas T. Stokes, secretary; Ernest F. Sewall, assistant secretary; J. H. Cunningham, physician; Rev. J. Dewes Roberts, chaplain; John Wilde, chairman pro tem. of relief committee; George Epps, auditor; Henry Squire, trustee of Mt. Hope lot; A. A. Hiferick, Thomas Jackson and G. H. Windeler, relief committee.

GILCHRIST FORCE ATTEND CONCERT

The Employes' Benefit Association of the Gilchrist Company last night gave a concert at Steinert Hall, which was attended by about 600 persons. The feature of the entertainment was the presentation to Robert H. Heartz, assistant superintendent of the Gilchrist Company, of a purse of gold by the members of the firm and a leather arm chair by the association. Mr. Heartz has worked in the great store now owned by the Gilchrist Company for forty years. The guests of honor last night were C. C. Ferris, president of the company; William Jardine, vice-president; William S. Butler, treasurer; T. J. Lane, assistant treasurer, and A. W. Phinney, superintendent.

$42 IN AUTO FINES.

Fines aggregating $42 were imposed by Judge Amery of the Quincy Police Court to-day on automobile owners for operating their machines in the Metropolitan Park, Milton, contrary to the rules and regulations governing speeding in the Metropolitan Park system. Those fined were Ernest C. Killon of Lynnfield, $15; Alfred E. Kimball of Readville, $2 and costs; Harry E. Clapp of Attleboro, $15; William Gheraldin of Boston, $10.

MISS GARDEN WARDROBE IN LAW'S CLUTCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—To-day is a day of distress for Mary Garden, for she is enmeshed in the ire of Uncle Sam. Those pesky custom house inspectors are at the bottom of it.

When the soprano Dreadnaught of the Hammerstein fleet arrived she wore an air of deep religious peace, marvelously set off with a gigantic Parisian muff nearly as big as one of Dr. Cook's sleeping bags.

The pious part of her wardrobe she promptly declared, avowing her intention of embracing Catholicism as soon as she returned to France, but she did not declare other things, for instance, $1,000 worth of silk hose and a few hundred pounds of cobwebby, fluffy stuff that goes in the same part of the catalogue with the stockings.

The entire lot was seized by the inspectors and to-day is in their possession. Collector Loeb won't let her have it until she pays the duty, and Miss Garden doesn't see why she should pay again for something which she has already paid for.

"As a matter of fact," she said to-day, "I am not an American citizen. I live in Paris and have lived there for ten years."

Any one who knows the singer well knows that 148 Avenue Malakoff is her official address and has been since the time when she lived on the Rue Washington. But the customs inspector remains obdurate. It is $1,100 or nothing. Will Mr. Hammerstein please pay this and get Miss Garden's clothes?

1,000 BOSTON MACHINISTS ASK A RAISE

The 50,000 machinists of New England are to-day considering whether they will follow the example of Machinists' Union No. 264 and demand an increase of 20 per cent. in their wages to become effective on May 1 next.

Last night almost all the 1,000 members of Local No. 264 met in Wells Memorial and unanimously voted to demand the 20 per cent. increase on May 1. It was the largest and most enthusiastic meeting ever held by the local.

To-day Business Agent Frank Jennings of the local is sending out notices to every other local in New England telling what was done here and asking that all the machinists make joint demand for better wages. To-night Agent Jennings goes to Springfield personally to influence the machinists there, most of whom work in the Federal armories, to take this action.

In Boston, the average wage paid machinists is $2.75 a day. A 20 per cent. increase would net the men $3.30 and they believe that is little enough under the present high cost of living. In Boston there are 3,000 machinists in all and three other locals in addition to No. 264. In Worcester there are 20,000 members of the general union.

$1.20 A WORD FOR PEARY'S POLAR STORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Commander Robert E. Peary's book on the discovery of the North Pole, will appear first as a magazine serial. The contracts were signed to-day.

A representative of the magazine, who would not permit the statement to be made over his name, asserted that the price was a record in the magazine field, and went on to say that it was 20 per cent. higher than ex-President Roosevelt would receive for his African hunting stories.

Mr. Roosevelt, it has always been understood, receives $1 a word. At 20 per cent. more than this figure, Commander Peary would get $1.20 a word for his story.

It was harder to reach Dr. Frederick A. Cook at the Waldorf than it was for the doctor to reach the Pole. Reporters had to wait at 89 degrees, 59 minutes, 30 seconds. Therefore the following question was sent by a bell boy to Dr. Cook:

"Would you agree to have the National Geographical Society, that has said that Commander Peary reached the Pole, have a representative go to Copenhagen and sit with the University scientists in their examination of your report?"

After a very long wait the explorer wrote: "The report of the National Geographical Society has not as yet been submitted to me. Therefore, I have no comment to make."

The State Department at Washington has declined to be drawn into the Cook-Peary controversy. The National Geographical Society had requested Secretary Knox to cable the University of Copenhagen, asking permission to examine the records of Dr. Cook when they are submitted. Mr. Knox refused. Meantime the society is arranging to send a committee to Copenhagen to inspect the records.

The Danes continue to profess confidence in Dr. Cook, according to dispatches from Copenhagen, but it is evident that they are growing uneasy, particularly since Dr. Cook's reply to Professor Torp's query as to when his observations would be ready for inspection.

Keeping Everlastingly At It

At the banquet of the New England Dry Goods Association, at the Hotel Somerset the other evening, Mr. Hugh Chalmers, of Detroit, had this to say in the course of his remarks on salesmanship: "You first make a sale NOT in the pocketbook—NOT in the order book—nor yet in the check book—but in the mind of the customer." Mr. Chalmers was paid a salary of $75,000 a year for knowing all there is to know about selling goods—and he ought to know what he is talking about. We may not have formulated this principle in these exact words when we started some 28 years ago, but we put into practice the exact facts which he expressed.

We recognized that the appeal to the mind is always the lasting appeal—and when we told each customer if he was not satisfied with his purchase, he could return it and get his money back if he wanted it, our sincerity rang true. We not only said it, but we did it, and we've kept at it through the 28 years—and we're going to keep everlastingly at it.

MORE JOIN IN MAYORALTY SCRAMBLE

out mayoralty nomination papers for me. Not being insane, I am not a candidate."

Samuel A. Mirandi, a City Hall merchant during the off season on politics, was the first to take out a set of papers for Mayor to-day. "Grooming a dark horse" was all he would say to inquisitive persons.

Edward Leneman of No. 40 Cortes street, the third in line, took out mayoralty papers for Jeremiah E. McCarthy.

Friends of Chairman Fred J. Brand of the Board of Aldermen took out an additional set of nomination papers for him to-day. It is said that the new set will be used for a Brand nomination for the City Council. Guy A. Ham started the Brand council boom yesterday. The alderman himself started his mayoralty boom some time ago. Folks on the inside say that Ham seeks to pull Brand out of the mayoralty race to better Mayor Hibbard's chances for re-election.

Papers for City Council.

Nomination papers for the City Council were taken out early to-day by:

John H. Griffin of No. 19 Winchester street, Ward 7.

Jacob Cohen of No. 68 Clarkson street.

Alderman John J. Attridge of Ward 9.

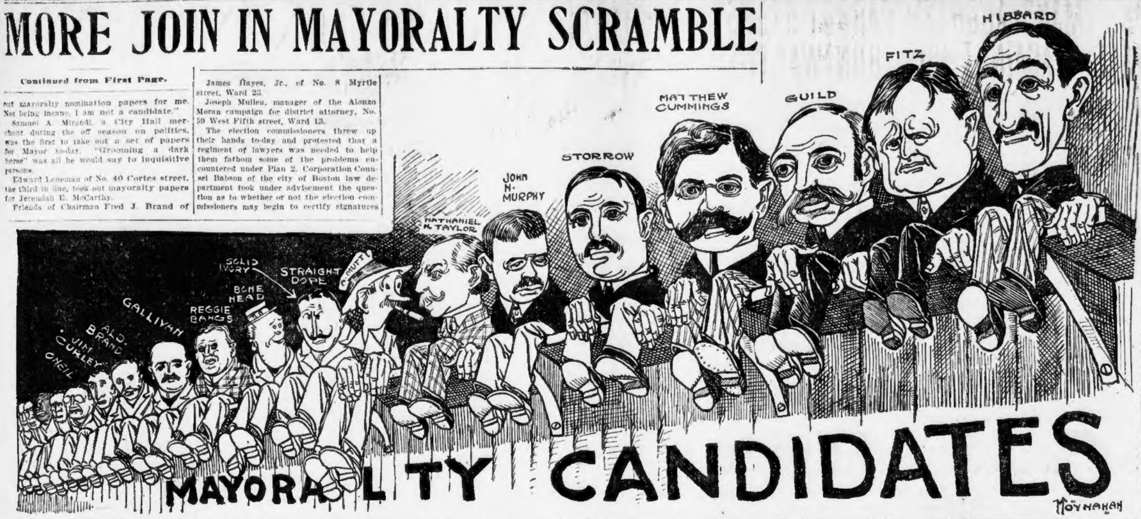
The election commissioners threw up their hands to-day and protested that a regiment of lawyers was needed to help them fathom some of the problems encountered under Plan 2. Corporation Counsel Babson of the city of Boston law department took under advisement the question as to whether or not the election commissioners may begin to certify signatures to nomination petitions before December 17, the last day for filing.



Question of Signatures.

The election commissioners would also like to have settled whether or not a voter who signs more than one nomination paper for mayor invalidates all of his signatures or only those which appear after that on the first paper filed for mayor. There are almost as many opinions on this matter as there are candidates for mayor.

Eminent lawyers who are identified with the Committee of One Hundred, or One Hundred and Fifty, or Seven Hundred and Fifty, or whatever it is, to-day offered gratis the opinion that a candidate for Mayor cannot hold more than 5,000 certified names on his mayoralty nomination papers. This opinion lightened the hearts of the committee folks, who have become alarmed at the announced intention of former Mayor Fitzgerald to produce as many signatures as he can get.

Charges of forgery in the signing of nomination papers were brought to the Committee of One Hundred to-day. Committee detectives began an investigation. The charges specify that lieutenants of mayoralty candidates are copying the voting lists on the nomination papers of their candidates.

In some cases, it is said, the petition-signers have notified the owners that their names are being used. Although a prison sentence is provided for such action, friends of candidates have taken chances in the past. Friends of the Committee of One Hundred said to-day that they would ask the Election Commissioners to investigate all signatures. Just how the commissioners are going to do it or have it done is a puzzle.

Labor Springs Surprise.

The Mayoralty ambitions of several candidates were given a shock to-day in the announcement by men prominent in Boston labor circles that a labor candidate would be put into the field for Mayor. He would be backed, they said, by organizations affiliated under the Boston Central Labor Union, by the Knights of Labor, any by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. The combined voting strength of these organizations is sufficient to elect.

Friends of prominent prospective candidates for mayor have become alarmed under the unexpected developments of Plan Two, fearing that the signatures necessary to clinch a nomination may be gobbled up before proper consideration can be given to the question of the men best fitted for the place.

It was announced to-day that a committee of 750, growing out of the committee of twenty-five now at work in behalf of a non-partisan candidate, will soon be in the field in the interest of James J. Storrow for mayor.

James Donovan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, has added his warning to that of Dr. Morton Prince of the Committee of One Hundred to citizens not to sign nomination papers without due consideration.

After 25,000 Names.

John F. Fitzgerald, who has now 10,000 signatures, although he needs but 5,000, and proposes to get 25,000, declares the order of Donovan to voters is an insult to their intelligence.

Charles S. Hamlin is in charge of the non-partisan movement. The first step before that demonstration is to provide a body much larger than the committee of twenty-five.

It was therefore decided that the members should name each five men, making a committee of 125. Each of these 125 will then name five men, bringing the organization up to 625.

The original committee of twenty-five will then name each twenty-five men, who will be added to the 625. The membership of the organization will be 750.

The committee of 750 will then hold a big meeting and will proceed to choose the candidates for Mayor, school committee and City Council.

FARMERS AT COTTON AND TOBACCO PLANTS

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 5.—Members of the National Farmers' Congress left here to-day on a special train for Durham and Greensboro. At Durham they were guests of the Merchants' Association and inspected the great tobacco industry there. At Greensboro they visited the mammoth cotton mill and the State Normal and Industrial College. They will return to Raleigh to-night. Sessions will be resumed to-morrow. The principal address will be delivered by Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture. Ambassador James Bryce is with the party and made short addresses at Trinity College, Durham and at the State Normal School at Greensboro and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

AMERICA TO HELP ON NEW MAP OF WORLD

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 5.—The International Geographic Congress has made all plans for the meeting of November 16 in London, to make a map of the world according to a common plan. Bailey Willis and Stephen J. Kubel, topographers in the United States Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior, have been selected to represent this country at the congress, and will sail to-morrow from New York.

CUMMINGS HAS BAIL; INDICTED WITH LOMBARD

Indictments against Town Treasurer John B. Lombard and Charles S. Cummings, a Boston broker, were presented to Judge Morton in the Superior Criminal Court in East Cambridge to-day, when the Middlesex county grand jury reported for the November sitting.

Charles S. Cummings has been freed from the Charles Street Jail, his bail for $20,000 having been furnished. Just who went on his bail bond his lawyers decline to tell. Butler R. Wilson, a negro lawyer of No. 34 School street, whose name appears on the bond, refuses to tell by whom he was employed and said this afternoon that he appeared in the case simply as an attorney for a client. Cummings was released on Tuesday. Every effort was made by Cummings's lawyers to keep secret the names of his bondsmen and the fact that he had been released.

Lombard and Cummings were indicted because of the Framingham note cases, which involve about $325,000. Lombard was indicted for forgery. There are two indictments against Cummings. One alleges he is guilty of larceny and the other accuses him of uttering.

The grand jury reported thirty-six indictments and two "no bills." Among the persons indicted is John A. McGorty. He is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder. He is accused of trying to slay his wife and three policemen of Hudson.

SAILOR RUNS AMUCK; FIRES INTO CROWDS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 5.—Carrying an army revolver and 300 bullets, Charles Seogren, a sailor on the U. S. survey boat Bach, to-day terrorized 300 men, women and children in this city by shooting at them and threatening to shoot up everyone in Portsmouth.

Seogren fired his revolver into the throng of people who landed in Portsmouth on the ferryboat from Kittery, Me., threatened the life of a bartender, shot up a barber shop and fired at a teamster before he was placed in a cell.

After leaving his ship in a fit of anger to-day and telling his comrades that he intended to shoot up all Portsmouth, Seogren came ashore near the Atlantic Shore Railway, just as the ferry from Kittery came to the slip. He brandished his revolver and fired into the crowd, disappeared and next turned up in the saloon owned by Samuel Young.

"I'll blow your brains out if you don't dance," shouted Seogren to the bartender. The man danced.

Seogren fired four shots in the saloon and then ran into the barber shop of William Webber. Here he shot through a show case and leveled his gun at the men in the barber chairs.

Bullets whizzed through the barber shop. The men who were in the barber chairs ran into a rear room and escaped injury.

Seogren fired a shot at William White, a teamster, who was driving by, but the bullet did not take effect.

A hurry call was sent to the police station and Policemen West and McCaffery appeared in the barber shop. Seogren saw them coming and made a flying leap out of an open window. The officers pursued Seogren and finally placed him under arrest.

As far as is known no one was injured by Seogren.

MRS. BRANDEGEE'S $600 PURSE STOLEN

A gold purse, studded with diamonds, rubies, sapphires and other precious stones, and valued at $600, was lost by Mrs. E. D. Brandegee, or stolen from her, in Cambridge on Saturday last. She went to Cambridge in her touring car to attend a wedding and when she got home her gold purse was gone. She has reported its loss to the Cambridge police and has offered $50 reward for its return. Mrs. Brandegee, who is prominent in Brookline society, is the sister of Mrs. Larz Anderson.

ASKS RUSEAU TO IDENTIFY 'BROTHER JIM'

A sensation was caused to-day at the hearing of the Russell will case in the East Cambridge Probate Court to-day, when Attorney Leslie Simpson, who represents Daniel Blake Russell of Dickinson, North Dakota, claimant for half of the $500,000 Russell estate, told Edward Ruseau that he would take him to see Russell, who he says is his brother.

Edward Ruseau to-day declared that the photographs that have been offered as evidence resembled his brother "Jim."

It became known for the first time in court to-day that the entire Ruseau family, who mysteriously disappeared during the two weeks' recess in the case, did not go to their home in Malone, N. Y., but lived quietly in the Belmont Hotel in Brockton, accompanied by a detective.

Ruseau was then cross-examined by Attorney Simpson for Daniel Blake Russell.

Q.—Did you ever hear your father say that you and "Jim" looked alike? A.—Yes, he told me that I looked like "Jim."

Q.—What was the color of "Jim's" eyes? A.—I don't know the color of his eyes. But his hair was like mine, dark.

Q.—Would you like to see your brother "Jim" now? A.—Yes, I would.

Q.—Will you go to see your brother "Jim" if I would take you? A.—Yes, I will go if they will let me.

Q.—I'll take you to see your brother "Jim" if I can do so without being shadowed by a detective.

Edward Ruseau admitted that he is being paid $5 a day by the people who are fighting Daniel Blake Russell's claim and that he had already received $67.50 since the case opened.

Joseph Ruseau, brother of Edward, was the next witness. He was handed photographs of the claimant in the case, which he said "looked like his brother, Jim." Joseph testified:

"My brother cut his foot very badly in 1894 while he was working in a blacksmith shop. The cut was deep. I do not recall on which foot it was.

"My brother left our home in New York State in 1895. We do not know where he went. He sent photographs to my mother of himself, his wife and his chums."

TAKE NEGROES FROM TOWN TO BAR LYNCHING

GASSAWAY, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Following a night of terror in which mobs surrounded the jail shouting threats of lynching, Scott Lewis and A. Johnson, negroes, were removed early to-day to the strong jail at Sutton, six miles from here. The prisoners are accused of being accomplices of Charles Lewis, the negro who attacked Mrs. Albert Rockhold after they had bound her husband hand and foot.

The removal of the negroes was accomplished by Sheriff McNutt and a heavy force of deputies.

Till the negroes were taken from the town Gassaway was practically under martial law. The jail was guarded by Company B of the National Guard and the streets were patrolled by Company A, which had been brought from Wheeling. As a result of the trouble here courts-martial for the officers will be ordered.

BOY'S SEVERE BLEEDING ECZEMA

Covered with Bleeding Humor when a Baby — Poor Little Sufferer Found No Rest and Could Only Fret and Cry Until Very First Use of Cuticura Brought Sleep.

JUSTICE OF PEACE TELLS OF CURE BY CUTICURA

"My baby boy was afflicted with eczema. It ran on him until he was full of sores from his head to his feet. Even the bottom of his feet were full of cracks with the blood coming out. I believe that his case was as bad as it generally gets, for he was bleeding all over and could not rest. He was too small to tell anything about it, only to fret and cry. We could get nothing to relieve him until we got the Cuticura Ointment and the first application of the Ointment put him to sleep. Then we used Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap and he continued to improve until cured. The boy is all right now and has been for the last seven or eight years. I believe that the Cuticura Remedies will cure all cases of eczema if used right, as I know that they were the first things that gave our baby relief. D. J. Pierce, Justice of the Peace of Lee Co., Cameron, N. C., Oct. 23 and Nov. 7, 1908."

LOW DUTY ON SANTA'S DOLLS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — Little girls need have no fear that Santa Claus cannot afford to bring them all the dolls they want next Christmas.

For a time the tariff threatened to raise the price of china dolls prohibitively, but Acting Secretary of the Treasury Norton has seen to it that this does not happen.

The question was raised by Collector of Customs Loeb of New York whether china dolls should be admitted into this country upon the payment of a 35 per cent. duty, or be assessed at 60 per cent., as "toys made of china." Investigation by the department experts showed that the authorities had always held that a doll was a doll and should not be classed as a toy, possibly because of the many troubles they cause their little mothers. Mr. Norton has held that china dolls must be classified with all other kinds of dolls and need only pay a duty of 35 per cent.

MANSLAUGHTER AGAINST HILL

FALL RIVER, Nov. 5.—An indictment of manslaughter was returned by the Bristol County Grand Jury after it had heard the evidence offered by District Attorney Swift to indicate that "Dr." Frank Hill had caused the death of Amelia St. Jean, whose dismembered body was found in different parts of the woods at Tiverton, R. I., nearly a month ago. Hill had been bound over on the charge of murder in the first degree.

It is understood that Hill will be placed on trial at the February term of the court.

The short time taken by the district attorney in presenting his evidence indicates that he revealed only a small part of the case against the herb doctor.

As the proceedings of the Grand Jury room are necessarily secret, it is not known why the degree of the crime charged was reduced.

FRIEND OF CHELSEA Y. M. C. A. GIVES $5,000

Ex-Alderman Arthur C. Stone then arose to state that provided $61,000 of the projected fund was raised he would supply the remaining $5,000.

PARROT STOPS RUNAWAY WIFE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The screeching of a parrot in the La Salle station frustrated the plans of a runaway wife, and later the bird was the means of effecting a reconciliation between the woman and her husband, Edward Zarndt. The couple were married a year ago at South Bend, Ind. Among the wedding gifts they received was the parrot.

When the husband discovered that his wife had gone he hurried to the La Salle street station. He searched through the waiting rooms, but his wife was not there. Just as he was leaving the building he heard a parrot screech. The sound came from the parcel room on the main floor. Thrusting his head through an opening his gaze fell upon the bird in its cage.

"Hello, polly," said Zarndt. "Polly know papa?"

"Hello, papa; hello," shouted the parrot.

The woman later appeared to claim the bird, and the reconciliation followed while the parrot screeched, "My wife's gone to the country."

BANQUET TO GUILD.

Slow Digestion

A Frequent Form of Stomach Trouble Readily Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

This complaint constitutes one of the most common forms of dyspepsia. It is the bane of those who ignore natural laws, and forget that the healthy action of the stomach is dependent on the condition of both body and mind. Those whose pursuits oblige them to pass much of their time within doors; men of letters, and of business, whose minds are seldom perfectly relaxed; administrators, speculators, financiers, and the various professional men fall ready victims to it.

Slow digestion occurs in persons of all temperaments and habits, but oftenest in those of irritable, or nervous disposition, and anxious aspect of countenance, who are popularly characterized as "dyspeptic looking." Eating too rapidly is a common, exciting cause of the disorder, as is also imperfect mastication of food from loss of teeth.

There is also a deficiency of the gastric juices, and an insufficiency of the motor and muscular, or churning movements of the stomach walls, and the food remains entirely too long in this organ, instead of being passed down into the small intestine at the proper time.

Even a dinner not exceeding the ordinary limits is followed at varying intervals, but usually within an hour, by a feeling of weight and oppression in the stomach. For several hours afterward the person experiences decided discomfort, and should even a light supper be taken, horrible nightmare and troubled dreams are certain to result.

"I should be quite well, if it were not necessary to eat," is a common statement made by sufferers from this form of stomach complaint. Many of them actually dread the approach of meal time, knowing what disagreeable symptoms they are sure to experience after eating; and would doubtless discontinue the ingestion of food into their stomachs altogether if it were possible to live without eating.

There is really no necessity whatever for depriving one's self of the pleasures of the table, or to starve the rest of the system because the stomach is derelict in its duty, and does not digest the food as quickly or as thoroughly as it should.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets compel the stomach to perform its functions properly and assist it very materially in the discharge of its duties, a single grain of the principal digestive ingredient of these tablets being sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of food. They not only digest the food, however, but also tone up and strengthen the peptic glands, and the motor functions, so that the food will not remain in the stomach longer than necessary. Every case of slow digestion and all other forms of dyspepsia are readily curable by the use of these tablets, which make up the gastric deficiency, and supply the disordered stomach with exactly the same digestive juices that are found in a healthy, vigorous stomach.

Purchase a package of these wonderful digestors from your druggist today for 50 cents and cure yourself of your dyspepsia. Send us your name and address, and we will forward you a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Company, 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

On His Pastor's Advice

MR. C. W. FOSTER

Mr. Chas. W. Foster, a prominent and respected citizen of East Haven, Conn., on the advice of his pastor some ten years ago, took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a tonic, with such good results that he has made it his stand-by ever since.

"I can highly recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, as I have taken it for the past ten years, as a general tonic.

"It was first recommended to me by a minister, the Rev. Dr. Holten, who had used it in his own family for some time with good results."—Chas. W. Foster, Lighthouse Point, East Haven, Conn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is indorsed by leading men in all professions, including clergymen, doctors, educators, nurses, lawyers, as well as business men and women in all walks of life. It is invaluable in the treatment of indigestion, nervous prostration, malaria, chills, low-fevers, and all diseases of the throat, the bronchial tubes and lungs. It is a heart tonic, and in old age, when the vital forces are yielding to the weight of years, it will bring strength and vigor to the muscular and nervous centers. Many men and women testify to the great benefits derived from its use.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

CORNELL PRACTICES ON STADIUM GRIDIRON FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Nov. 5.—The Cornell football squad spent an hour of hard signal work at the Stadium this afternoon as the guest of the Harvard Athletic Association, and the favored few who saw the secret work were strongly of the opinion that the crowd from Ithaca are much stronger than their work of the season would show, and that Harvard will have to be keenly alert to every possibility of the working of the open football in the game to-morrow or will be up against a hard proposition.

Although the Cornell team has not had a very successful season this year they looked very good in to-day practice and went through their signal work like seasoned veterans and were apparently thoroughly conditioned and coached for the first game in years against the Harvard eleven.

Guests of B. A. A.

The Cornell squad and nearly one hundred supporters arrived in Boston this morning and went immediately to the Lenox Hotel, where they will make their headquarters until the game is over and where they will be joined to-morrow by a large delegation of students from Ithaca. Every Cornell man has received two weeks' guest cards from the Boston Athletic Association and this morning the football players, as well as the students were the guests of B. A. A. members and for automobile rides to historical places in Boston and vicinity.

The players received a much shorter ride than the rooting delegation, and after lunch boarded automobiles shortly after 2 o'clock and were driven to the Stadium, where they were given the same protection as Harvard receives in secret work and the Harvard practice was delayed for an hour.

Many Coaches on Hand.

The Cornell squad worked under the direction of Head Coach Reed, who was assisted by Coaches Larkin, O'Rourke, Walder, Hunt, Bryant, Lynch, Newhall and their physical attention was closely watched by Trainer John F. Moakley of Boston and his assistant, Frank Sheehan of Boston.

The squad was composed of Crosby, Hurlburt, MacArthur, Teagle and Kultchar, ends; Weeks, Stude, Monk, O'Rourke, Leventry, Farrington and Trumpi, tackles; O'Connor, Donnan, Delano, South, Jefferson and Hale guards; Seagrave an d'Elfoffer, centres; Baker, Owen and Wood quarterbacks; Tydeman, Hoffman and Kruisch, Robb and Wiggins, halfbacks; Simson and Gass fullbacks.

Ends Causing Worry.

The physical condition of Crosby and Hulburt, the star ends, is causing the coaching staff much worry, as the eleven is stronger, especially in the open game, with these men in, and if things go bad it is likely that they will be used against Harvard and Teagle and MacArthur taken out. The selection of Baker as quarterback over the veteran Owen was only made after a long conference, and the victory of the former Exeter player will be pleasing to his many friends at Harvard, where he was expected to go instead of to Cornell.

FEW TICKETS FOR BIG GAME

Never before in the history of college athletics at Harvard has the supply of tickets for the Harvard-Yale game been so limited. An unusual number of old graduates will come on to witness this game, and never before has the number of applications for tickets for personal use been so large.

No tickets are to be secured at New Haven, either, on account of the fact that the Eli's supply is too small for the wants of the undergraduates alone.

The following letter speaks for itself:

Sporting Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN.

A Harvard graduate myself, I wish to voice the protest of numerous other Harvard graduates at the manner in which the Harvard Athletic Association has conducted its distribution of tickets for the Harvard-Cornell game Saturday.

I was informed by a circular issued by the athletic association that tickets could be obtained only by written application mailed to the association. This was done, it was stated, in order to keep the tickets out of the hands of speculators. Accordingly I filed my application for two tickets at $1.50 apiece and [illegible] seats on the Cornell side near the bowl of the stadium and opposite the goal line. After receiving these tickets I happened to enter one of the stores where tickets are usually sold for the minor football games and found that the association had placed on sale there a large number of tickets at $1 apiece, the location of which was in some instances better than the location of the tickets which I secured at $1.50 apiece.

The tickets sold at this agency were all opposite the five or ten-yard line on the Cornell side near the wooden stands.

In Boston I found speculators all along Washington street selling these tickets for $2 and even higher. In view of these facts and the apparent desire of the Harvard Athletic Association to keep the tickets out of the hands of speculators, I am unable to understand the whole affair.

The attitude of the athletic association this year in issuing season tickets for only five small games at the price of $2 [illegible] also a mystery to me.

JEFF BEGINS TRAINING ON FISH DIET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—To-day will be fish day at Jim Jeffries's hotel for fair. The big Californian went fishing yesterday twelve miles off Sheepshead Bay, and when he got back to the Albany last night he dumped five canvas sacks at Host Murphy's feet containing 800 whiting and ling, the whole catch weighing fully 1,000 pounds. Jeff turned the mess over to the genial Murphy and instructed him to let the guests of the hotel eat their fill.

Jeff, together with Billy Wright, "Sparrow" Vernon and Arthur Middleton, went out before daybreak in the schooner M. J. R. and drifted about with the tide.

There was a great run of ling and whiting, and Jeff sat rooted, hauling the fish in three at a time. During the day a squall came up and the rest of the party weakened and had to go below. Not Jeff. Though it was bitter cold, Jeff still sat at the rail with his pole dangling over the side, hauling in the fish. It reminded him of his catalina excursions in California for yellow tail, excepted that the last named fish always put up a smart rough fight before submitting to the humiliation of being dumped into the bottom of a boat. When the squall came up and Jeff's friends were getting pale about the gills, the skipper of the boat insisted on riding the heavy seas head on.

That was the only time that Jeff deserted his fishing post. He went into the pilot house, took the wheel and showed the captain something new in the art of riding rough water. Jeff steered the boat at a three quarter angle, which reduced the pitching so much that his friends were enabled to come on deck for air. Jeff refused to go below for dinner so interested did he become in the catch. A small sandwich was all that he ate all day, though the rest of the party were below enjoying all the dainties that the season afforded. Jeff managed to hook a skate weighing twelve pounds. He hauled the near flounder aboard, and brought the fins and skin back to town for a souvenir.

Evidently Tom McCarey is going to make a strong bid for the big fight. The Los Angeles Promoter is out with the following statement and it looks as if McCarey expects to name the largest figure:

"I am pleased with every detail of the Jeffries-Johnson articles. I want to talk personally with Jeffries before I hand in my bid for the contest. All I want to know is that the highest legitimate bidder is to have the battle. For weeks I have been quietly working on the matter. I feel positive that no man in the world can make a genuine bid larger than the one I intend to make. Los Angeles shall have the fight unless some irregular means are employed to take it away from this city. The town of Los Angeles is where Jeff should fight."

McCarey will bid high, there is no mistake about that, but the general opinion is that the handling of the attraction lies between Jack Gleason and Jim Coffroth, both of San Francisco. Jeff and Johnson would feel perfectly safe in trusting the championship fray to either man. Jeff has a lot of respect for McCarey's business ability.

BAY STATE AND BOSTON AUTO CLUBS COMBINE

By J. C. KERRISON.

The club atmosphere of the Boston motor world is rapidly clearing, and the indications now are that there will be but one big active, energetic organiatzion, and that the Bay State Automobile Association. The proposed Boston Motor Club has given to its members the privilege of receiving almost the whole of the original membership fee, or using it as the initiation and membership fee for the Bay State Automobile Association, the same fee to apply to the cost of membership until January 1, next.

During the past eight or nine months every effort has been made to bring the two organizations together, but there has always arisen some slight difficulty that could not be bridged. Now, however, the two clubs have come together on a mutual basis, and those members of the Boston Motor Club who desire to become affiliated with the Bay State Automobile Association can have their membership transferred thereto, or, if they so desire, can have their original membership fee returned to them, minus about five per cent. which has been spent for the expenses of the Boston Club. The gentlemen at the head of the latter organization have been particularly careful of expenditures and of contracting any very heavy expenses, as be shown by the fact that not over five per cent. of their receipts were expended, and that each member so desiring will receive a rebate of something like $9.50 for the $10 originally paid in.

This outcome of the matter should prove of decided advantage to the Bay State Automobile Association in particular and the sport in general. The Bay State will unquestionably receive an inflation of its membership, and local interest will become united instead of divided as it has been to a certain degree all season long.

The amalgamation of the two organizations, for it is really that, means a renewal of interests, greater activity and greater results for the industry at large. It is certainly welcome to the motorists at large. With a united front the motorists can gain greater concessions in the matter of legislation, in the matter of better consideration by the towns and cities, than is possible when divided into two classes.

Mt. Pleasant, the former Carlisle star, now captain at Dickinson, did not shine against Pennsylvania. It was not so much because Mt. Pleasant has fallen off as a player as that the Quakers followed his every movement and he did not have a chance.

Reggie Brown is keeping in touch with the development of the Yale team again this year for Percy Haughton. No old Harvard player has studied the game more closely than Brown in the last thirteen years, and his observations last fall greatly influenced the development of the Harvard attack which put Kennard in a position to win the game with his drop kick.

In 1876, when Rugby foot ball was introduced into this country, the only oval foot balls were procured by the Harvard management. Yale practiced with a round ball until just before the Harvard game, when a regulation ball was borrowed from Cambridge. In the game Harvard made three touchdowns, but did not kick the goals, therefore getting no points. Yale kicked a field goal, and, under the rules, won the game.

MIKE TWIN TO TACKLE FLYNN

Mike Twin Sullivan and Porky Flynn have been matched to box the windup at the Armory A. A. on November 16. They will meet at catchweights. On form the match ought to prove a very even thing. Porky fought a draw with Bill McKinnon at the Armory a few months ago, while McKinnon and Mike Twin also went to a draw at the same club.

PREP LEAGUE STARTS TO-DAY

This afternoon, for the first time in the history of the Preparatory League, a championship game will be played on an open field. Brookline High and Cambridge Latin schools, the contestants, have found it impossible to secure an enclosed field, so will play the initial game of the league series on the gridiron at Griggs Field, Brookline.

From the showing of the two schools in their preliminary contests, Brookline High should be the winner, but as there have been many surprises sprung during the season in the scholastic world, the red and blue will no doubt find the Cambridge boys in better shape than at any time this year.

I have seen McDonough box a number of times and he is not only a good boxer, but an exceptionally game boy, and you'll never be betting [illegible] lead card if you lay that he won't quit as long as he is able to go on.

Mr. Optim's Greatest Dream

Easy Work Picking Oranges From the Trees

By KENNETT HARRIS

"IT has been [illegible] day, hasn't it?" said Mrs. [illegible] when the family had seated [illegible] for the evening.

"I believe it has been a little cloudy," responded Mr. O[illegible].

"Awful [illegible]," corroborated [illegible], looking up from her history lesson. "Oo-ooo! I nearly fr[illegible] coming home."

"You attend to what you are doing, darling," [illegible] Mrs. Optim. "I want you children [illegible] to study, not to talk. What are you [illegible] for, dear?"

"It was [illegible], wasn't it?" agreed Mr. Optim, his smile broadening. "I was smiling because it was so dark and [illegible]. But of course that is nothing to what it will be later on. [illegible] think of zero weather and snow storms and northeast winds that sweep right through [illegible] clothes and congeal the marrow in [illegible] bones."

"You seem to enjoy the prospect," remarked Mrs. Optim, not quite so [illegible] as she might have spoken.

"I do," replied Mr. Optim. "I revel in the thought of blizzards and [illegible] and chattering teeth and chilblains. The remembrance of our inadequate furnace and insufficient bed covering [illegible] me with glee.

"Don't look unhappy, dear. Just wait until I tell you why. It's because we are not going to be made miserable by such things any longer. We are going to be like the rich people, we're going South, my dear."

"Oh, goody, goody!" squealed Ethelinda and Drusilla in concert.

"We are going South."

Mrs. Optim looked at them sadly. "Children," she remonstrated, and then she added, "James, dear, you shouldn't."

"But I mean it," declared Mr. Optim. "I really mean every word of it. We are going to a climate that is kind and hospitable, where the skies are blue and cloudless, and the sun shines warm and bright. We are going to forsake this smoky, dirty, noisy city for a land 'where every prospect pleases and only man'—and where man is all right, too. We are going to Florida."

This time the children were beyond repression and history was wholly abandoned.

"When did you decide on this?" asked Mrs. Optim when the clamor of delight had subsided.

"Some time ago this morning," replied the head of the household. "I've been considering it in all of its aspects ever since. I'm only sorry that I never thought of it before, but we are slaves of environment, of the rut [illegible].

"Why people should be content to drudge hopelessly year after year, pinched by poverty, in uncongenial surroundings, when independence and plenty with ample leisure for rational enjoyment and the cultivation of the mind are theirs for the taking, is a mystery to me."

Mr. Optim's Great Dream

"In Florida there is no harsh, inclement weather," resumed Mr. Optim. "There, as Longfellow says, 'no stony ground provokes the wrath of the farmer; smoothly the ploughshare runs through the soil as a keel through the water.' Roses bloom all the year round and palm trees wave and the perfume of the orange blossoms is heavy in the air."

Mrs. Optim sighed and threaded her darning needle.

"The children will live wholesome lives, close to the heart of nature," Mr. Optim went on, as he lifted Drusilla to his knee, "breathing in the ozone and the pine in the air and——"

"Can we run barefoot, daddy?" asked Ethelinda with shining eyes, and Drusilla echoed "[illegible]"

"Oh, [illegible] look [illegible] his fat little legs," Drusilla [illegible], ecstatically.

Mrs. Optim sighed. "What do you intend to do in Florida, dear?" she asked.

"Oranges, principally," [illegible] Mr. Optim. "From ten acres of [illegible] we can realize enough to live [illegible] and educate the children without [illegible] anxiety and worry that [illegible]."

"I don't think you [illegible]," said Mrs. Optim, rather reproachfully.

"Who Will Give It to Us?"

"Not more than I can [illegible], my dear," admitted her husband [illegible] as philosophically as I can [illegible] I won't have any occasion to be philosop[illegible]. [illegible] orange grove to [illegible] and my [illegible] and [illegible] children. We will have to invent troubles."

"Who is going to be kind enough to give us an orange grove, dearest?" asked Mrs. Optim.

Mr. Optim laughed good-naturedly. "I don't [illegible] that the land was [illegible] worth $20 [illegible]. Think of a whole acre of the most fertile land that ever lay out doors for $20.

"I expect to buy at least twenty acres to begin with. It is possible that I may buy an option on some more, but that we can settle later.

"I suppose you are going to ask me where the four hundred dollars is to come from. [illegible] I thought [illegible] I anticipated that question.

"Well, in the first place, I don't have to make full payment at once. I can pay down [illegible] dollars an acre and the balance on easy terms. Of course it will be out of the question for us to ship all of our furniture and other belongings, so we will sell them and with the money we realize from the sale and what I can raise from other sources—"

"What other sources?" asked Mrs. Optim.

"I'll have to consider that a little," replied Mr. Optim. "Anyway I feel quite confident of getting enough somehow, and then—"

"May we pick the oranges?" asked Ethelinda.

"Hush, darling, your father is talking," said Mrs. Optim.

"And then we'll set out our orange trees," said Mr. Optim.

Everything Figured Out

"Wouldn't it take some years for the trees to mature, and won't we need some money to live on in the meantime? And if our furniture is all sold we'll have to buy things."

"I'm glad that you asked me those questions, my dear," said Mr. Optim. "I think I can satisfy you.

"While our oranges are maturing we can raise small fruits and vegetables, for which there is a ready market at all times. I am informed that three crops can be raised every year, and two of these crops ought to be enough to buy the few simple articles of furniture that we need as well as the food that we are unable to raise for ourselves, while we devote the proceeds of the third crop to the purchase price of the land.

"You see, I have figured everything out. Then, game is abundant, and the waters of the many lakes and rivers are teeming with excellent fish. What are you sighing for, dear?"

"I was thinking of the coal," replied Mrs. Optim mournfully. "There isn't more than enough to last until Saturday and this isn't Florida, you know."

"There's no use worrying about it, my love," said Mr. Optim.

To-Day's Best Story

IN ante-bellum days Colonel Moore, of Kentucky, owned a large number of negroes. He was a kind master and never punished his negroes with the whip. One day one of the field hands named 'Jupe' was guilty of some negligence and was sent to the woods at once to cut down and split up a black-gum tree, practically an impossible task. Jupe cut down the tree and labored hard to split the tough wood, but in vain. In the meantime a thunder storm came up and Jupe sought refuge under a brush heap. Directly the lightning struck a large poplar tree near by, splitting it into kindling wood. After the storm had passed Jupe crawled out from his place of security and after taking a careful look at the remains of the poplar tree, which were scattered all over the woods, said, "Mr. Lightnin', I wish you had just tried yo' han' on dis black gum. Any blame fool can split a poplar."

AND he proceeded to do the honors in so friendly a way that Alice was presently quite at her ease again.

"Now," he resumed, "we'll settle down comfortably and you can tell me what brought you here; tell me all about it. You won't mind if I smoke a cigarette? Be sure to tell me everything—there is plenty of time."

So Alice began and told him about the mysterious lady and their agitated visit to the tower, omitting nothing, while M. Paul listened with [illegible] interest, nodding and frowning and asking frequent questions.

"This is very important," he said, sharply, when she had finished. "What a pity you couldn't get her name!" He [illegible] his fingers [illegible] on his chair-arm, reflecting that for the second time this woman had escaped him.

"Did I do wrong?" asked Alice in confusion.

"I suppose not, I understand your feelings, but would you know her again?" he questioned.

"Oh, yes, anywhere," answered Alice, confidently.

"How old is she?"

"You think she may be older?"

"I'm sure she isn't younger."

"Is she pretty?"

"Oh, yes, very pretty, very animated and chic."

"Would you call her a lady?"

"Why—er—yes."

"Aren't you sure?"

She Is an American.

"It isn't that, but American ladies are different."

"Why do you think she is an American?" he asked.

"I'm sure she is. I can always tell American ladies; they wear more colors than French ladies, more [illegible], more things on their hats. I've often noticed it [illegible]. I can know them by their shiny finger nails and their shrill voices."

"Does she speak with an accent?"

"She speaks fluently, like a foreigner who has lived a long time in Paris, but she has a slight accent."

"Ah! Now give me her message again. Are you sure you remember it exactly?"

"Quite sure. Besides, she made me write it down so as not to miss a word. Here it is," and producing the torn page she read: "Tell M. Kittredge that the lady who called [illegible] know [illegible] that the person she thought guilty last night is not guilty. She knows this absolutely [illegible] she will [illegible] to appear [illegible] in favor of M. Kittredge if it is necessary. But she [illegible] I will not [illegible] M. Kittredge to use this [illegible] for a good [illegible]."

"She didn't say who this person is that she thought guilty last night?"

"No."

"Did she say why she thought him guilty or what changed her mind? Did she drop any hint? Try to remember."

"[illegible]," she said, "No," he [illegible] nothing about that.

Coquenil rose and walked back and forth [illegible] his hands deep in his pockets, head forward, eyes on the floor, back and forth several times without a word. Then he stopped before Alice, [illegible] into the [illegible] as if making up his mind about something.

"[illegible] mission. You're only a girl, but you've been thrown into this tragic affair and you'd be glad to help your lover, won't you?"

"Oh, yes," she answered eagerly.

"You may as well know that we are facing a situation not altogether encouraging. I believe M. Kittredge is innocent and I hope to prove it, but others think differently, and they have serious things against him."

"What things?" she demanded, her cheeks paling.

"No matter now."

"There can be nothing against him," declared the girl. "He is the soul of honor."

"I believe it," answered the detective, dryly, "but he is also in prison, and unless we do something he is apt to stay there."

"What can we do?" murmured Alice, twisting her fingers piteously.

"We must get at the truth; we must find this woman who came to see you. The quickest way to do that is through Kittredge himself. He knows all about her if we can make him speak. So far he has refused to say a word, but there is one person who ought to unseal his lips, that is the girl he loves."

"Oh, yes," exclaimed Alice, her face lighting with new hope. "I think I could. I am sure I could, only—will they let me see him?"

"That is the point. It is against the prison rule for a person au secret to see anyone except his lawyer, but I know the director of the Santé and I think—"

"You mean the director of the depot?"

"No, for M. Kittredge was transferred from the depot this morning; you know the depot is only a temporary receiving station, but the Santé is one of the regular French prisons. It's there they send men charged with murder."

Alice shivered at the word. "Yes," she murmured, "and what were you saying?"

"I say that I know the director of the Santé, and I think, if I send you to him with a strong note, he will make an exception. I think so."

"Splendid!" she cried joyfully. "And when shall I present the note?"

"To-day, since there isn't an hour to lose. I will write it now."

"There," he said, handing her the note. "Now, listen. You are to find out certain things from him. I can't tell you how to find them out; that is your affair, but you must do it."

"Get This Woman's Name."

"I will," declared Alice.

"You must find them out even if he doesn't wish to tell you. His safety and your happiness may depend on it."

"I understand."

"Yes," replied Alice, and then her face clouded. "But if it isn't honorable for him to tell her name?"

"You must make him see that it is honorable. The lady herself says she is ready to testify if necessary. At first she was afraid of implicating some person she thought guilty, but now she knows that person is not guilty. Besides, you can say that we shall certainly know all about this woman in a few days, whether he tells us or not, so he may as well save us valuable time. Better write that down. Here is a pad."

"Save us valuable time," repeated Alice, pencil in hand.

"Then I want to know about [illegible] husband. Is he dark or fair? Tall or short? Does Kittredge know him? Has he ever had words with him or any trouble? Got that?"

"Yes," replied Alice, writing hastily.

"Then—do you know whether he plays tennis?"

Alice looked up in surprise. "Why, yes, he does. I remember hearing him say he likes it better than golf."

"I see."

"Now I want to know if M. Kittredge uses both hands in playing tennis, or only one hand. And I want to know which hand he uses chiefly, that is, the right or the left?"

"Why do you want to know that?" inquired Alice with a woman's curiosity.

"Never mind. I say just remember it's important. Another thing is to ask M. Kittredge about [illegible] chest of drawers in his room at the Hotel des Voyageurs. It is a piece of old oak, rather worn, often, but it has good bronzes for the drawer handles, two [illegible] fighting on either side of the lockplates."

Alice listened in astonishment. "I didn't suppose you knew where M. Kittredge lived."

"Nor did I until this morning," he smiled. "[illegible] as my friend Gibelin says, I haven't wasted my time."

"Your friend Gibelin?" repeated Alice, not understanding.

Coquenil [illegible]. "He is an amiable person, for whom I am preparing a—a little surprise."

"Oh! And what about the chest of drawers?"

"It's about one particular drawer, the small upper one on the right-hand side—better write that down."

"The small upper drawer on the right-hand side," repeated Alice.

"I find that M. Kittredge always kept this drawer locked. He seems to be a methodical person and I want to know if he remembers opening it a few days ago and finding it unlocked. Have you got that?"

"Yes."

"Good! Oh, one thing more. Find out if M. Kittredge ever suffers from rheumatism or gout."

The girl smiled. "Of course he doesn't, he is only twenty-eight."

"Please do not take this lightly, mademoiselle," the detective chided gently. "It is perhaps the most important point of all; his release from prison may depend upon it."

"Oh, I'm sorry. I'm not taking it lightly, indeed I'm not," and with tears in her eyes Alice assured M. Paul that she fully realized the importance of this mission and would spare no effort to make it successful.

A few moments later she hurried away, buoyed up by the thought that she was not only to see her lover, but to serve him.

THE LATEST STYLES IN KNITTING AND CROCHETING

A New and Exclusive Sweater Design

Fashion insists that, for most purposes, sweaters must be "dressy." Here is an original Fleisher model that certainly fills this requirement. It has the lines and fit of a fashionably tailored coat with a richness and softness of texture that no cloth can imitate. Two boxes Fleisher's Germantown Zephyr, seven yards silk braid, and two silk frogs are all the materials required. In such a garment the stitch must be perfectly even, the texture firm, and it must retain its original shape. Fleisher's Germantown Zephyr will positively produce these results.

Full directions for making this and many other new and staple articles may be found in Fleisher's Knitting and Crocheting Manual. Also, a complete course of instruction in the various stitches.

Typical English Country Dance for Society Buds at Burrs' Home Tonight

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Debutantes are in a merry flutter of excitement to-day over the bud ball which Mrs. I. Tucker Burr is giving to-night at her country home in Milton.

The hospitality, which will be in the form of the typical English country dance—the guests coming Friday and remaining over the week end—is in honor of the season's three most popular and attractive buds, Constance Zerrahn, Marian Weld and Katherine O. Saltonstall.

Miss Zerrahn is the only one of the three who has previously been formally presented, her debut taking place late in October at a tea given in her honor by her parents at their Milton home.

All the season's buds are shaking out their daintiest frocks to-day, and the dance to-night will be for them one of the most brilliant occasions of the Winter.

BARBARA BURR, FOR WHOSE SISTER BUDS FETE IS TO BE GIVEN

THE SAME THING.

"Then," said the professor, "you mean that you can know nothing?"

"Nothing but what I can comprehend," replied the student.

"That's the same thing," said the professor, making a not in his record book.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

KEEP AT IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty-two years of age. I have no bad habits whatever, and by constant work I have managed to pile up a bank account, also build a cottage of my own. I work every day in the year and have not been absent from duty in the past five years a single day. Now, Miss Fairfax, I had the pleasure of meeting a very fine young lady about four months ago and called on the young lady quite often for two months steady; then I was in a position that I could not see the young lady for at least two months; when I did call she did not act the same toward me as she used to when I first called on her. I know there is no other young man between us, and I am very anxious to gain her true friendship and have her feel the same toward me as she did at first. I think the world of this young lady and I would do anything to please her. I do not think she loves me, but I am sure she cares for me a whole lot. If I can gain her love I certainly will do anything in my power to make her future life full of happiness. Will you kindly advise how I might gain her love.

J.

I THINK that you will gain her love if you keep on striving for it and show her every possible attention and let her see that you are serious and want to marry her. She probably is a little bit offended by your long absence, but I am sure she will get over that.

NO HARM AT ALL.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you kindly advise me as to a matter which has caused a dispute between members of my family? A young man with whom I have been keeping company for two years was obliged to go out on business at an early hour in the morning, and as the air was rather chilly I asked him to take my sweater. This act was considered very wrong on my part, and, therefore, I am anxious to know if I did wrong in asking him to accept it?

THERE was absolutely no wrong in your doing as you did. It was simply a kind thought for his comfort, and you need not feel in the least that you made a mistake.

Their Co-Operative Treat

BILLY was speaking in strict confidence to a friend.

"You know the kind of a girl I mean—tall, stately, dark, neck curving gracefully forward out of a sheathy, shimmery collar to give the head, surmounted with hair that's all her own, just the right poise.

"Well, that's Louise.

"As for Betty, Louise's sister—well, you didn't notice that she was short and just a little too stout after you'd been talking to her for five minutes and really got to know her as Fred and I know her.

"You know Fred. He and I have been so close to each other for years that we've passed the stage where it matters when one has a little less money than the other at the end of the week. It all goes into the common pool.

"So it happened that when Fred called up Friday afternoon and suggested a show and supper that night with Louise and Betty I was just $3.80 strong, but willing.

"We were having dinner early and were just in the midst of it when the telephone bell rang frantically and Fred called over the wire that the girls had been shopping and we were to meet them downtown for dinner. But at that it was all right, for I thought Fred would have enough to settle the dinner bill.

"As for the theatre, I had one pair of tickets on a call at the box office and an extra pair beside them would only set us back $3 more, so I felt safe.

"It wasn't until Fred slipped me the danger signal on a card underneath the table that I began to get nervous. It read:

"I'm here with four. How are you fixed?'

"I flashed back: 'Three and a half.'

"Figure it out for yourself. Seven and a half against two hungry maids and a pair of show tickets—and we just had to eat. The waiter loomed obsequiously, but none the less ominous over us and—

"Well, Louise wasn't hungry, she said. A few frogs' legs would do—and maybe a cup of coffee, though she didn't care much for either; she was only ordering to be sociable.

"Sister said for us to go ahead and order—she wanted to study the bill awhile.

"Fred spoke for an oyster cocktail. Really, that was all he wanted, as he'd had a lunch about 4:30. Talk about lying like a gentleman—that boy was an artist.

"As for myself I could say honestly—and did—that I'd had something before I left the house and some toast and coffee would do.

"Just then Betty got into the game. She said: 'I'm hungry. I'm going to have some clams, a steak, potato au gratin, celery and some—'

"The rest was a blank to me.

"As for Fred, the last impression I have of him was one of utter and hopeless dejection—wilted down into his chair, his hands thrust deep in his pockets and his chin sunk in his shirt front.

"He came back just long enough to tell the waiter he thought he'd 'better make that two orders of toast and coffee'—that it was 'too early in the season for oysters.'

"Fred settled the check and added the half dollar I slipped him as a tip. This reduced our joint capital after the show was over to the biggest silver quarter you ever saw.

"I told the girls that Fred had to get to work early in the morning and I would go home with them alone.

"Just as I had said 'good night' at the door, Betty called to me to 'phone Fred that he still had her pocketbook in his pocket—would he please send it out by messenger in the morning?

"Fred answered the phone himself when I delivered the message. He was laughing, a cold, bitter laugh.

"'Yes, I sent it as soon as I got down in the morning,' he said. 'But that isn't the worst of it! Billy, do you know how much that girl had in long, sleek, crisp yellowbacks—and in my pocket all that time? Eighty cold dollars! And just to think'——

"His emotions overcame him then and he quit talking."

THE PLEASURE OF BOSSING.

MR. S—— offered a young colored man fifteen cents to cut the grass about his home. Returning a few hours later, Mr. S—— saw the darky whom he had hired lying in the shade of some trees watching another darky cut the grass.

"What's the matter, Sam?" inquired Mr. S——.

"Nawthin', sah," returned the negro, placidly. "Jim just happened along and done offered to take the job offen my hands, and I 'lowed he could do it just as well as I could, sah."

"Oh, it's all right, Sam. I suppose you are making something off the deal, aren't you?" Mr. S—— queried, amused at the lordly air of Sam.

"No, sah," replied the negro. "I done tole that Jim I'd give him two bits (twenty-five cents) to cut that thar grass."

"Two bits!" exclaimed Mr. S——. "Why, Sam, you are an awful fool. That is ten cents more than I am going to pay you."

"Yes, sah," Sam rejoined, amiably, "I know dat, sah; but I cal-late it's worth ten cents to me to be boss for a whole afternoon, sah."

FAMED

SCOTLAND has a great reputation for learning, and a Boston woman, who recently visited there, expected to find the proverbial shepherd quoting Vergil and the laborer who had Burns by heart. She was disillusioned in Edinburgh. Accosting a policeman, she inquired as to the whereabouts of Carlyle's house.

"Which Carlyle?" he asked.

"Thomas Carlyle," said the lady.

"What does he do?"

"He was a writer—but he's dead," she faltered.

"Well, madam," the big Scot informed her, "if the man is dead over five years there's little chance of finding out anything about him in a big city like this."

WEALTHY HARVARD SOCIETY MAN WHO HAS TURNED ACTOR

Jacob Wendell, Jr.

A society man, member of Boston's smartest clubs, relative of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard and Evart J. Wendell, the famous Harvard runner, has gone on the stage and has become a real actor.

He is Jacob Wendell, Jr., Harvard '91, a wealthy young man, who is welcome in the drawing rooms of the exclusive Back Bay set and has taken part in many society weddings as usher in Boston during the past few years.

He has joined the New Theatre company in New York and will play minor parts under Julia Marlowe, E. H. Southern, and the other famous actors and actresses who are members of the New Theatre company.

Mr. Wendell is so fond of his work that he almost rushed from a smart wedding in St. Bartholomew's Church, to the theatre, so that he could get off his frock coat and top hat, get into the regalia of a noble Roman and be ready, away ahead of time, for a rehearsal of "Antony and Cleopatra," in which he is to appear to-morrow night. His part is the tiny one of Agrippa, a friend of Caesar.

Walter Scott's "Guff"

By KENNETT HARRIS

A WOMAN in our hours of ease, we're told by Walter Scott,
Is most almighty hard to please, and I won't say she's not;
But when our brows are wrung with pain, says Walter, it's a fact,
Instead of raising merry Cain, she does the angel act.

I don't know what the angels do when they set out to nurse,
But if what Walter says is true, they'd make a fellow worse.
The brews that women mix I hope are not in heav'nly use,
For if they are angelic dope, they taste just like the Deuce.

If I just catch a little cold, my wife gets after me,
And fills me full as I can hold of scalding boneset tea.
I tell her in pathetic tones that while I'm grateful, yet
The trouble isn't in my bones, which are already set.

She doesn't heed the things I say, but water she will heat,
With which she then proceeds to flay the skin from off my feet.
My symptoms are quite manifest. To skill I don't pretend,
But why does she believe it best to treat me end for end?

That angel woman wraps me then in blankets hot as fire,
And mortal tongue nor mortal pen can tell how I perspire.
No cold such treatment can endure, but say just what you please,
It's my opinion that the cure is worse than the disease.

If any angels come to earth to treat me, I've a hunch
That they would simply urge the worth of some good, reeking punch.
They'd not prescribe the boneset stuff. That's why it makes me hot
To read that fool "O woman" guff put out by Walter Scott.

The Barb in Her Letter

"IT'S a letter from Mary," said the man's wife, looking up at her husband. "I'll let you see it in a minute."

"Don't hurry," said the man, taking another bite of toast. "I don't think I'd have time to read it anyway. Nothing exciting, is there?"

"I don't know what you would call exciting," said his wife. "She says the baby's beginning to walk already."

"That's important, if true," observed the man. "Just think of that!"

"It certainly is remarkable," said the man's wife. "She's not more than a year old. You always sneer at Mary's letters."

"I don't mean to," said the man. "I think you imagine it. I wonder when she'll learn to stop talking. I don't refer to Mary, but the kid. Mary won't be able to teach her, though. 'The mother tongue!' What a particularly apt phrase that is! You never quite realize it until you think how absurd it would be to say 'father tongue.'"

"Or 'father wit,'" suggested the man's wife. "My dear, I notice that you can talk now and then."

"Whenever I get a chance," admitted the man. "What else has Mary got to say?"

"I'd rather not tell you," said the man's wife. "I guess I won't let you see the letter, either, come to think of it."

The man looked uneasy. "Mary doesn't know anything about me that I wouldn't be perfectly willing to tell you myself," he said. "Let me see her letter."

"It wasn't anything."

"If it wasn't anything, why don't you tell me or let me see the letter?"

"It was only that Robert had bought her a beautiful new set of furs—Russian sable. That was all, really. You can read the letter if you want to."

The man stared. "What on earth made you think that would hurt my feelings?"

The man's wife hesitated. "Well," she said, "I suppose that when you thought of my shabby old set you might feel a little bad because you can't afford"——

"Wait till Christmas and we'll see what happens," said the man, hastily. "Mary's always getting me into trouble."

USE GAS THE MODERN FUEL

PROBLEM SOLVED

Many storekeepers, AFTER TRYING nearly every form of ELECTRIC LIGHT, including the Tungsten lamp are turning to the MODERN INVERTED GAS LAMP as offering a solution of the problem of SATISFACTORY ARTIFICIAL ILLUMINATION.

ECONOMY

While the ADMITTED ECONOMY of the gas lamp over electricity (and recent tests show a difference of three or four times in favor of gas) is an ADDED ADVANTAGE, the MAIN ATTRACTION is the SUPERIOR QUALITY of the illumination produced, as many merchants desire the BEST LIGHT regardless of cost.

BEST LIGHT

SOFT EFFECT

RESEMBLES DAYLIGHT

NO GLARE

This NEW GAS LAMP satisfies nearly every requirement of ILLUMINATING ENGINEERING. The LIGHT SOURCE has a LARGE SURFACE, thus producing a SOFT EFFECT without the SHARP SHADOWS common with ELECTRIC LIGHT. The COLOR is said by scientists to more nearly RESEMBLE DAYLIGHT than electric light. The DIFFUSION is also GREATLY SUPERIOR. Altogether these merchants find that the NEW GAS LAMP allows them to DISPLAY their goods to BETTER ADVANTAGE without the GLARE of ELECTRIC LIGHT, bringing out the TRUE COLORS, as in daylight.

AN EXAMPLE

These new inverted GAS LAMPS lend themselves readily to ARTISTIC DESIGN, as shown by the accompanying cut. This cut is from a photograph of the GAS FIXTURES installed last summer at COLLINS & FAIRBANKS CO., the well-known Washington St. HAT STORE. A PERSONAL INSPECTION of the lighting in this store will convince you of its SUPERIOR QUALITY.

EXHIBITION AT 1915 EXPOSITION

We have OTHER TYPES of these lamps adapted to different requirements. A NUMBER OF EXAMPLES may be seen at the BOSTON 1915 EXPOSITION, Old Art Museum, Copley Square. The MAIN ENTRANCE FOYER is lighted ENTIRELY by GAS, combining SUPERIOR QUALITY with ARTISTIC TREATMENT of the fixtures. The three rooms to the right of the entrance show COMMERCIAL LIGHTING. IN OUR OWN EXHIBIT we show a MODEL LIVING ROOM, KITCHEN and HALL, each equipped with the LATEST GAS FIXTURES and APPLIANCES.

You are invited to visit our Exhibit or call at the BOSTON GAS APPLIANCE EXCHANGE, 16 West Street. This store will be open Tuesday and Friday evenings during the month of November.

The foreign monetary situation is the obstacle to any speculative aggressiveness on this side of the water. Until the outlook in London becomes clearer, New York banking interests can hardly be expected to give any great support to speculative activity for the rise.

Overwhelmed with admiration for their own audacity in trying to make Amalgamated lead the stock market, the speculative group that is now busy in the Street pushed Steel to the front.

It is clear that sentiment toward United States Steel is undergoing a decided change. The stubborn strength in the stock at the high level of prices reached, has convinced many of the correctness of the figures which have been published from time to time. These show upwards of the equivalent of $80 for the stock to have been reinvested in the property from earnings, since the formation of the company.

Action of the Harriman shares has disconcerted professionals, but the fact is that all the Harriman people are busy accumulating Southern Pacific. The more the public dislikes the action of those stocks the better it will please the insiders. It is only a question of how the money market stands at the time of the next dividend meeting of Southern Pacific whether the stock gets 6 per cent. or 7.

A new pool has been organized in American Car and Foundry under leadership of the same interests that advanced Reading several years ago. The stock is to get 4 per cent. at the next dividend declaration, but it has already gone far beyond a price that would be justified by such a dividend. The boomers are looking ahead, for the company is overwhelmed with business. The year 1910 promises to be a record-breaker. Pressed Steel Car is strong for the same reasons, although there is no important pool at work in it.

$ $ $

The public is overlooking New York Air Brake and Westinghouse to some extent, although those two companies have a monopoly of the air brake business in the United States. With so many thousand cars being built these companies cannot escape tremendous prosperity. Yet the stocks are neglected. Air Brake has sold at nearly double its present price in worse times than those of 1910 will be. Westinghouse, for other reasons than the air brake business, has discounted very largely its own prosperity for the immediate future.

$ $ $

Southern Railway is being talked of by speculative groups as a good stock to take hold of for a long campaign. They base this chiefly on the fact that the cotton crop this year is now quoted at a value of about $900,000,000, counting both the seed and fibre. Southern Railway is particularly strong because the territory which it serves did not have a cotton failure this year of great importance. Nearly half of the total crop was produced in that territory alone—that is to say, in Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas.

$ $ $

All the members of the copper group show a strong undertone and the Street in general seems to be impressed with the rumors of a trade agreement. The election of Mr. McLean of Phelps, Dodge & Co. to the directorate of the Greene companies, which are controlled by the Cole-Ryan interests, is regarded as significant, although there is really no reason why the Street should adopt such a view.

$ $ $

Copper has strengthened from the low prices and the competitors of the United Metals Selling Company are asking 13 cents, thirty days delivery. These interests were recent sellers at 12¾ cents.

$ $ $

The head of one of the largest selling agencies estimates that during the past week sales aggregated 50,000,000 pounds of copper. Statements that the Guggenheims are fully sold up through the end of the year are doubted in well-posted circles.

EXERCISE, GOOD AND BAD—Mme. Cavallieri, in the Sunday American, gives another splendid article on beauty and health, how to attain and how to preserve them.

STRIKERS TO SEND TAFT IMMENSE PIE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—As an ordinary pie is to an ordinary citizen, so, to President Taft, is a mince pie which he is going to receive for his Thanksgiving Day dinner from the union plasters who are now on strike here in town. Whether he'll eat it or not is another story. At any rate, the strikers decided yesterday to send it to him.

Statistically speaking, an ordinary citizen is three feet around the equatorial region. His Thanksgiving pie is, usually, fourteen inches across and two inches thick. Mr. Taft's equatorial measurement is somewhere in the vicinage of eight feet. His pie, therefore, will be something like thirty-seven inches across and four and three-quarter inches thick.

CHURCH DIVORCE SUIT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Ernest D'Ombrain, son of a canon of the English church at Canterbury, has instituted divorce proceedings against Mrs. Edith D'Ombrain, said to be the daughter of a London money lender. They were married in Saddleworth, England, in 1902, and a year later came to California. Desertion is the charge.

GIRL COUNTY TREASURER.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 5.—Miss Gertrude Jordan, good-looking, independent and twenty-eight years old, was elected treasurer of Cherry County Tuesday. Until recently she had been a deputy in the office. She made the race as a Republican.

STRENGTH IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Following an irregular opening, at which fractional losses and gains were about evenly distributed, stocks turned strong in Wall Street to-day and gains of from 1 to 2 points were recorded in the leaders.

Union Pacific advanced about a point with Reading. Steel Common was fairly active and rose nearly a point. There was less activity in Amalgamated Copper, but it gained a fraction. Colorado Fuel and Iron advanced to the new high record of 51⅜. Smelters was also higher. A good demand continued for the low priced industrial shares. Buying on a liberal scale caused good advances in Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Americal Agricultural Chemical and American Hide and Leather preferred.

The American Cotton Oil rose about two points because of declaration of five per cent. dividend. Owing to the demand for air brakes that will naturally grow out of the large number of new cars being built New York Air Brake and Westinghouse shares were strong. These stocks have not shared in the advance of the general market.

Copper shares were steady on the New York Curb. Trading was moderately active in the silver shares. No material price changes were recorded however.

LOCAL LIST IRREGULAR

STATE STREET, Nov. 5.—Stocks were irregular this forenoon and showed the results of more or less profit taking. Nothing more definite is heard of the Copper merger, although the Street is perfectly satisfied that something is being worked out which will, in due time, give Copper shares a good old-time bull move. A better feeling is shown in the metal market, and recent large sales have cleaned up the copper that has been pressing for sale.

Amalgamated was less active after yesterday's sharp drive just before the closing hour. Opening at 88¼, it stiffened to 88⅜. The features in the local market were a point and over rise in the price of American Zinc shares to 38⅝ and a point rise in Shoe Machinery common to 70½. Pool work was largely responsible for these advances.

Miami showed strength with an advance to 17½. North Butte stiffened from 60½ to 61¼, with partial setback, and Utah Apex did better with an advance to 4⅞. There have been recent favorable advices from this property. Steel common was quiet at from 92⅝ to 93.

There was a less volume of business on the curb during the forenoon session. Majestic was the active issue, with sales at from 1 to 1¼. Chino stiffened to 8½, and Union Copper was also firm.

BUDGET IS PASSED BY DECISIVE VOTE

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The House of Commons passed the third reading of the finance bill by a vote of 379 to 149. The Nationalists did not vote.

In announcing his party's decision to abstain, John F. Redmond, in a speech in the House later, emphatically declared that if it was a question of the Lord's power to block the country's legislation permanently he would not be on the side of the Lords, but on the side of the Commons, and he would not allow himself to be cajoled from this attitude by reason of his opposition to increased taxation in Ireland.

GETS FOUR MONTHS FOR WILD AUTO RUN

For recklessly operating an automobile in the metropolitan park, Milton, and for being under the influence of liquor, Aaron Anderson of Malden was given four months in the House of Correction by Judge Amery in the Quincy Police Court to-day. He appealed and was held in $300 for the Superior Court. John M. Devine of Roxbury, for attempting to rescue Anderson from Officer Dwyer, who made the arrest, had his case placed on file. Harry B. Porter, Thomas J. Carey, both of Roxbury, who with Devine were in the automobile, were fined $10 each for intoxication.

Rockefeller's Prohibition Plan Not Practical

Give Men Better Things Don't Take What Little They Have

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

John D. Rockefeller, meaning, of course, to do something noble and useful, has been trying to enforce prohibition by his influence on the ballot in the neighborhood where he lives.

There isn't any doubt that Mr. Rockefeller means to benefit his fellow men as well as make his neighborhood quiet when he tries to establish prohibition.

But Rockefeller goes about his task in a most unwise and quite impossible way. It is good to learn that his recent attempt to enforce his will upon others outside, while retaining entire liberty in his own establishment, should have failed.

It is difficult for men like Mr. Rockefeller to realize the difference between themselves and the ordinary citizen, especially the difference between the life of a man of wealth and a mechanic or laborer.

Mr. Rockefeller has a great deal to keep him occupied. He has his comfortable fortune of several hundred millions. He has enormous estates, great business excitement, a life of constant speculating on an enormous scale.

He has his games of golf, his automobiles, his flatterers and sycophants, his tame judges, his servile legislatures.

There is nothing dull about the life of John D. Rockefeller.

On the contrary, there is a great deal that is dull about the life of the man to whom Rockefeller says, "I don't think you OUGHT to take a drink, AND THEREFORE I AM NOT GOING TO LET YOU TAKE IT."

If men like Rockefeller only knew it, they owe a great deal to the fact that so many millions of men are willing to work hard all day, take a glass of beer, or two glasses of beer, then go to bed, and begin work all over again.

If Mr. Rockefeller would make up his mind not to take away the few pleasures that those men have, but to make those pleasures greater and harmless by managing them better, he could do a great work for humanity, and a great work for REAL TEMPERANCE at the same time.

The low gin mill is a curse. The sale of WHISKEY is a curse. If Mr. Rockefeller could fight gin, whiskey and the other distilled poisons, and if he would fight them, in his old familiar way, by FREEZING THEM OUT, he would be a great and useful man indeed.

Mr. Rockefeller, who has more money than he really needs, could do a great temperance work easily and simply. Instead of saying to the men around him who have so little in their lives, "YOU SHAN'T HAVE ANYTHING AT ALL, NOT EVEN A GLASS OF BEER," LET HIM BUILD FOR THEM, AND MANAGE FOR THEM, THE FINEST BEER GARDENS THAT EVER WERE SEEN—WINE AND BEER GARDENS SUCH AS THEY HAVE IN EUROPE, BUT ON A MORE MAGNIFICENT SCALE. Let him give to the workers at the end of the day pure beer, good, pure, light wines, AND GOOD MUSIC. Let him, with competition of that kind, wipe out the gin mills, the whiskey dives.

eLt him have doctors, writing and talking, explaining to the people that whiskey and all distilled liquors are poisons that breed insanity and crime, whereas, as the great scientist Liebig truly said, "Bread and beer are the FOOD of the workingman."

If Mr. Rockefeller would use a little of his money fighting whiskey, and a little of his money giving the people a chance to get good, pure beer and wines, and good music, under cheerful conditions, he would do a great deal of good temperance work.

If he would destroy the present type of saloon, BY BRINGING IN THE COMPETITION OF ANOTHER TYPE, he would cure drunkenness and at the same time increase human happiness.

Mr. Rockefeller and others may as well make up their minds THAT THEY WILL NEVER STOP MEN DRINKING. You can discourage the worst drinks, the poisons, but you cannot say to men, "You shall not drink anything at all."

If Mr. Rockefeller should succeed all around his place in having the open sale of all kinds of drinks stopped HIS NEIGHBORHOOD WOULD BE LESS SAFE THAN IT IS NOW.

One single man who secretly buys a bottle of whiskey, drinks the entire bottle, lies down by the roadside, and wakes up with reckless and criminal impulses, IS FAR MORE DANGEROUS THAN ALL THE MEN THAT EVER GATHERED SOCIALLY, LEGALLY AND PEACEABLY TOGETHER IN A DECENTLY MANAGED BEER GARDEN.

Mr. Rockefeller at his own table would not for a moment think of saying to the guests, "You shall not have anything to drink here."

What right has he to go out among those whose life is dull and say to other men, his equals as free citizens, "YOU SHALL NOT DO WHAT I DO NOT WANT YOU TO DO"?

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

CHARACTER OR BRAINS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorials have been of great interest to me and others, and I would ask you to kindly choose "What would you rather have—character or brains?" as an editorial. I feel you could handle it well. I chose character, since that is what makes a great city, although brains may make it rich. Lincoln is my model of a man with character and a normal amount of brains. Thanking you for past editorials,

SINOL MILLS.

DO LITTLE THINGS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As a constant reader of your editorials I was indeed delighted to read the one, "If you can't do big things, do little things." In many ways there is a powerful lesson to be learned from it by the young man. But I think there is something else to be gained than the real satisfaction of knowing that we have done something, be it ever so small. This life I imagine would be indeed miserable if it was not for the bright spots that pierce their way through the ordinary black clouds of every day life. I believe the greatest satisfaction and the greatest blessings we can derive by doing something are to be gained by helping someone else.

How many men are wandering the streets of Boston, down and out, without food, shelter or friends, with no one to speak a kind word, wandering around aimlessly with all ambition gone. No doubt he and he alone is to blame for his present condition, but the fact still remains he is some mother's son, and as a member of the world's family he is our brother. Here I think is a God-sent chance to do a little thing that may lead to enormous things being accomplished, for after all it will be the little things that will count most in our lives. Does it cost too much, whether we be Christians or not, to give a grip of the hand, to speak a kind word, to bring a little sunshine into the lives of those who seemingly live in the dark, or in fact do as the teaching of the Gospel tells us, "Do as ye would have them do unto you." If we could only take this as our motto and as our every day lesson in life then indeed we should very truly be living up to a standard of doing things, be they ever so large or small.

HE'S ON THE JOB AGAIN!

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Have been a reader of your paper for several years and have taken particular interest in your cartoons.

Lately I have missed Mr. A. Mutt. From outward appearances I should say that he was on his last "legs." Mr. Mutt, I believe, has been a drawing card for your paper and has increased your circulation, as I have several friends who have purchased your paper for the sole reason of seeing what Mr. A. Mutt was doing.

WITH PLEASURE PERKY.
SURE.
1
YES, WHEN I WAS AT COLLEGE IN THE CLASS OF '91, I WAS ALWAYS PICKED FOR CENTRE RUSH ON OUR TEAM. ONE NEEDS PLENTY OF PLUCK AND ENDURANCE TO HOLD THAT POSITION. MANY A TIME ONE OF OUR BOYS WOULD BE CARRIED OFF THE FIELD OF COMBAT DISABLED, BUT I ALWAYS MANAGED TO HOLD MY OWN.
DID YOU PLAY TOO FERDIE?
SURE! WHERE I WAS LIGHT AND NIMBLE ON MY FEET, I USUALLY PLAYED QUARTER BACK.
2
WHAT A CROWD! SAY HALL-ROOM, YOU GET THE TICKETS. ANY MAN CAPABLE OF PLAYING CENTRE RUSH OUGHT TO BE ABLE TO NEGOTIATE THAT CROWD WITH EASE.
ER ALL RIGHT.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE

The Religion of Work

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

MAN is a building animal, and the same Creative Energy that impelled the Greeks and later the Romans to plan, devise, toil and build, played through the good monk, Benedict. His desire to create was a form of the great Cosmic Urge, that lives eternally and is building in America a finer, better and nobler religion than the world has ever seen—a Religion of Humanity—a religion of which at times Benedict caught vivid passing glimpses, as one sees at night the landscape brilliantly illumined by the lightning's flash.

The motto of St. Benedict was "Ecce Labora." These words were carved on the entrance to every Benedictine monastery.

The monastic idea originated in the Orient, where nature placed no special penalty on idleness. Indeed, labor may have been a curse in Asia. Morality is crystallized expediency, and both, we are told, are matters of geography, as well as time. And truth it is that north of the Mediterranean idleness is the curse, not labor.

The rule of Benedict was not unlike that of the Shakers, for near every monastery was a nunnery. The association of men and women, although quite limited, was better for both than the absolute separation, say of Trappists, who regard it a sin even to look upon the face of woman.

The thrift and industry of the Benedictines was worthy of Ann Lee and our friends the Shakers. A man who works eight hours, with fair intelligence, and does not set out to make consumption and waste the business of his life, grows rich. Thoreau was right, an hour a day will support you. But Thoreau was wrong in supposing that men work only to get food, clothing and shelter. To work only an hour a day is to evolve into a loafer. We work not to acquire, but to become.

The group idea, cemented by able leadership and a religious concept, is always successful. The Mormons, Quakers, Harmonyites, Economites, the Oneida Community, all grew rich, and surpassed their neighbors, not only in point of money, but in health, happiness, intelligence and general mental grasp.

Benedictine Thrift and Industry

Brook Farm failed for lack of a leader with business instinct, but, as it was, it divided up among its members a rich legacy of spiritual and mental assets. In what is called "good society" there is a constant danger through rivalry, not in well doing, not in human service, but in conspicuous waste and conspicuous leisure. The religious rite of feet-washing is absolutely lost, both as a rite and as an idea. In truth, "good society" is essentially predatory in its instincts. In communal life, or the life of a group, service and not waste is the watchword. This must be so, since every group, at its beginning, is held together through the thought of service. To meet and unite on a basis of jealous rivalry and sharp practice is unthinkable, for these are the things that disintegrate the group.

It is an economic law that a group founded upon and practicing the idea of each member giving all, wins all. Benedict's idea of "Ecce Labora" made every Benedictine monastery a centre of wealth. Work stops bickering, strife and undue waste. It makes for health and strength. The reward of work is not immunity from toil, but more work—and increased capacity for effort.

De Tocqueville gave this recipe for success:

Subdue yourself—devote yourself.

That is to say, subdue the ego to a point where it gets its gratification in concentrating on unselfish service. He who does this always succeeds, for not only is he engaged upon a plan of life in which there is little competition, but he is working in line with a divine law, the law of mutuality, which provides that all the good you do to others you do for yourself.

Benedictine monasticism leads straight to wealth and great power. The Abbot of the group became a Baron. "I took a vow of poverty, and it led to an income of twenty thousand pounds a year. I took the vow of obedience, and find myself ruler of fifty towns and villages."

These are the words which Sir Walter Scott puts into the mouth of an Abbot, who became a Baron through the simple law to which I have hinted. And in this novel, "The Abbot," Sir Walter Scott gives a tragic picture of how power and wealth can be lost as well as won. Feudalism began with the rule of the monastery.

Benedict was one of the world's great captains of industry. And, like all great enterprisers, he won through utilizing the efforts of others. In picking his Abbots or the men to be "Father" of each particular group, he showed rare skill. These men learned from him and he learned from them. One of his best men was Cassiodorus. The man who evolved the scheme of the scriptorium. "To study eight hours a day was not enough," said Cassiodorus. "We should copy the great works of literature so that every monastery shall have a library as good as that which we have at Monte Cassino." He himself was an expert penman, and he set himself the task of teaching the monks how to write as well as read. "To write beautifully is a great joy to our God," he said.

The Love of Art and Beauty

Benedict liked the idea, and at once put it into execution. Cassiodorus is the patron saint of every maker of books who loves his craft.

The systematic work of the scriptorium originated in the brain of Cassiodorus, and he was appointed by Benedict to go from one monastery to another and inform the Abbot that a voice had come from God to Benedict saying that these precious books must be copied, and presented to those who would prize them.

Near Monte Cassino was a nunnery, presided over by Scholastica, the twin sister of Benedict. Renan says that the kinship of Scholastica and Benedict was a spiritual tie, not one of blood. If so, we respect it none the less. St. Gregory tells of the death of Benedict thus: "Benedict was at the end of his career. His interview with Torila took place in 542, in the year which preceded his death, and from his earliest day of the following year God prepared him for his last struggle, by requiring from him the sacrifice of the most tender affection he had retained on earth. The beautiful and touching incident of the last meeting of Benedict and his twin sister, Scholastica, is a picture long to remember. At the window of his cell, three days after her death, Benedict had a vision of his dear sister's soul entering heaven in the form of a snowy dove. He immediately sent for her body and placed it in a sepulchre which he had already prepared for himself, that death might not separate those whose souls had always been united in God.

"The death of his sister was the signal of departure for himself. He survived her forty days. He announced his death to several of his monks, then far from Monte Cassino. A violent fever having seized him, he caused himself on the sixth day of his sickness to be carried to the chapel of St. John the Baptist; he had before ordered the tomb in which his sister already slept to be opened. There, supported in the arms of his disciples, he received the holy Viaticum, then, placing himself at the side of the open grave, but at the foot of the altar, and with his arms extended toward heaven, he died, standing, whispering a last prayer. Such a victorious death became the great soldier of God. He was buried by the side of his beloved Scholastica, in a sepulchre made on the spot where stood the Altar of Apollo, which he had replaced by another to our beloved Saviour."

THE HOOKWORM

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I.

His wife was young and pretty as a peach;
She wanted for to go to a leading Broadway show,
Because a solemn lesson it did teach.
Her husband was so languid that he didn't want to stir,
His face was sallow and his hair was gray.
"You never take me anywhere," was her unkindest slur,
And unto her that old man then did say:

CHORUS.

"I know I'm not a live one, I know that I'm a bookworm,
But I have lost my ginger now, because I have a hookworm!
